Republicans Hail Ike's Decision

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said today he will run for a second term if the Republican convention and the people want him.

Republican leaders left no doubt they want him. They took his decision as a firm yes, and jubilantly predicted "overwhelming victory" in November.

Mr. Eisenhower made his announcement at a record-breaking news conference.

Bethlehem Steel led the upturn, up nearly $3. The market ran at a fast clip with the tickers behind the trading on the floor.

President Eisenhower will go on a U.S.-Canada radio-TV hookup at 10 p.m. EST (7 p.m. Victoria time) to explain to the people, he said, a number of factors bearing on his decision. Then he added:

"My answer will be positive. That is, affirmative."

"And I assure you of this: My answer would not be affirmative unless I thought I could last out the five years."

Mr. Eisenhower said he did not know for certain whether the Republican convention would want him after his speech tonight.

But the Republican leaders were more than satisfied. To a man, they predicted the party convention in San Francisco next August will renominate Mr. Eisenhower by acclamation —without even taking a roll call. And probably with vice-president Richard M. Nixon as his running mate again, although Mr. Eisenhower would not commit himself on that today.

He made it plain at his news conference that he did not consider the heart attack he suffered at Denver last Sept. 24 a handicap to trying for a second term.

A moment before his news conference ended, in the course of answering a question, he declared firmly that he could assure the reporters "my answer would not be affirmative unless I thought I could last out the five years."

Mr. Eisenhower disclosed that, as recently as Tuesday morning, he was still arguing with himself about which way to decide. He said he finally confided his decision with about six people last night.

The president's disclosure came in a tense and dramatic news conference which attracted a record crowd of 311 reporters and photographers.

More than 40 newsmen were turned away because of lack of space.

FINAL REPORT ON VANCOUVER POLICE PROBE

Mulligan Accepted Bribes Tupper Commission Finds

3-YEAR TRADE PACT

Russia Buys Canada Wheat

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Canada has signed a three-year trade agreement with Russia under which the Soviet will take a maximum of 55,000,000 bushels and a minimum of 45,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat during the next three years.

The Soviet undertaking means that this country will sell between $60,000,000 and $75,000,000 worth of wheat to Russia at world prices prevailing at the time of shipment.

SAME RATES AS U.S.

In return Canada has agreed to grant most favored nation treatment in its tariff schedules to Russia. This means that Russian goods coming into Canada will be admitted at lower tariff rates than have prevailed against them.

The agreement, outlined in Commons this afternoon by Trade Minister Howe, does not bind Canada to firm commitmen to take any particular type of Russian goods or any specified quantity. Thus Canada has obtained a firm commitment from Russia to buy Canadian wheat but in return has not had to make any firm commitment to take Russian goods.

FROM B.C. PORTS

The wheat will be shipped to Russia's eastern ports out of Vancouver.

The agreement specifies the amount of Canadian wheat Russia will take in tons, a minimum of 1,200,000 tons (14,687,000 bushels). Russia will place orders immediately for Canadian wheat and the orders will total at least 500,000 tons in the first year.

Mr. Howe and External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson signed the agreement for Canada. Russian ambassador Dmitri S. Chauvahin signed for the Soviet Union. The pact must be ratified by both governments within 90 days.

Mr. Howe told Commons today he would ask for Parliament's approval.

Russia has been eager to obtain the "most favored nation" tariff concession from Canada. It will place Russia on the same basis for trade as the United States and other "most favored" countries. Canada also trades on this basis with Communist Poland, Czechoslovakia and China.

NO. SPECIFIED

Government sources declined to speculate here on what Canada might take in the way of goods from Russia. Canada produces furs and pulp and paper in quantities, and these are the major export items that Russia has to offer.

During the first 10 months of last year Canada sold Russia $2,672,000 worth of goods, mostly wood pulp and vegetable oils. Canada imported $554,000 worth of Russian goods, mainly furs.

During the negotiations which began Feb. 1, Canada reportedly sought to have the agreement extend beyond three years but the Russians refused to sign beyond the three years. They are presumably gambling that their agricultural development program will have progressed to a point at the end of three years that they may not require Canadian wheat.

GOVERNMENT SUSPENDS JAMIESON

See Page 21

Edgar Jamieson, Sergeant-at-Arms in the B.C. Legislature, today was suspended from the service of the House.

Mr. Jamieson told the Times his suspension resulted from his evidence before the legislature's committee on mining and railroads this morning in connection with Stewart-Cassiar road construction.

He testified he had stated outside the committee that he was out to "break" Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers over his handling of the road project.

Lloyd Off On World Peace Tour

LONDON (Reuters)—Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd took off today on a peace-making tour through the Middle East on his way to and from an eight-power conference in Karachi next month on Asian security.

Lloyd will meet State Secretary Dulles of the United States and the foreign ministers of the six other member countries in the Pakistani capital March 6-8 for a session of the council of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. The other pact members are Pakistan, France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and the Philippines.

Lloyd will visit Egypt, Israel and other Middle East capitals for talks on the Arab-Israeli tension, and will also call at New Delhi for talks with India's Prime Minister Nehru.

At the airport today, Lloyd said the security of the Middle East countries depends on the fact that the "big three" Western powers are determined to honor their 1950 declaration guaranteeing peace in the area.

Britain, France and the U.S. "are determined to honor the 1950 tripartite agreement in the spirit and the letter."

About Israel, he said: "We do not think that its security depends on an arms race."

LIBERALS TO BARE STURDY EVIDENCE?

By TOM GOULD, Times Legislative Reporter

Startling new charges in connection with the Sommers-Sturdy case are expected to be bared in the legislature today.

The four-man Liberal group in the House is expected to counter-attack as the result of sweeping accusations made by former lands and forests Minister R. E. Sommers in his resignation statement Monday.

George Gregory (Lib., Victoria) is scheduled to lead off the Opposition blast when the legislature consider the estimates of the lands and forests department.

The estimates are scheduled to be considered at today's sitting.

NO COMMENT

Mr. Gregory would make no comment on the nature of the statement he plans.

However, it is expected he will "name names" in the Sturdy-Sommers case, as a result of Mr. Sommers' attack on the chief defence witness in the slander action the former minister initiated against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy.

The Sturdy-Sommers case has kept the House in constant turmoil since the current session opened Jan. 17. The House is due to prorogue on Friday.

The CCF group is expected to join in the hue and cry by demanding again a royal commission into the entire case.

The Liberals are angry at the charges levelled by Mr. Sommers.

However, they are withholding all comment, and prefer to make all their statements on the floor of the House. The lands and forests department estimates will provide the last opportunity for the issue to be raised.

TO DEMAND PROOF

Liberal leader Arthur Laing is expected to demand proof of the "plot" against Mr. Sommers and B.C.'s forest legislation.

And there are reports the former minister will be asked to resign from his seat in the House if he cannot substantiate his accusations.

Vancouver Papers Urge Royal Inquiry

Vancouver newspapers united today in editorials demanding a royal commission of inquiry into the resignation of Forests Minister Sommers. Here are excerpts:

THE SUN: "The resignation settles nothing. It merely reinforces the demand for a royal commission of inquiry into his conduct as minister. . . . The way to defend the government and to protect the forests . . . is to expose the alleged plotters . . . by a wide-open inquiry.

THE PROVINCE: "Ten days ago, this newspaper . . . stated editorially that a public inquiry into the entire controversy was the appropriate method to deal with the situation . . . the inquiry should be undertaken with the rules of evidence applied."

THE HERALD: "A judicial commission of inquiry . . . could do more than bring into the open the factors precipitating Mr. Sommers' declaration to the legislature (that 'hundreds of thousands of dollars' have been invested to upset government control of the forest). He does not need to await a judicial inquiry . . . the legislature is still in session.

Ray Munro Remanded

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Munro, tabloid reporter and central figure in Vancouver's Tupper police inquiry, was remanded one week in police court on a charge he assaulted Billy Hinton, 13, Feb. 12. Munro did not appear in court.

Kenneth Hinton, the boy's father, laid the charge and said the incident occurred while Billy and two companions were cycling in the downtown area.

Cuthbert Also Named; All Others Cleared

Royal Commissioner R. H. Tupper, Q.C., has ruled that ex-chief of police Walter Mulligan of Vancouver, now in California, accepted bribes in 1949 and also shared pay-off money from gamblers with former Detective Sergeant Leonard W. Cuthbert.

The final report by Mr. Tupper on the sensational Vancouver police inquiry containing these findings was tabled in the legislature this afternoon by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

It cleared all other officers on the force of any evidence of wrongdoing.

The report made no recommendations as to possible legal steps. Attorney-General Bonner, who presented the report, announced that a committee of three lawyers has been set up to "determine any future course of action."

The 78,000-word document contained 16 opinions of Mr. Tupper, including.

". . . L. W. Cuthbert, in and between March 1 and May 15, 1949, corruptly accepted moneys as bribes to dissuade him from his duty as a police officer, from Peter Wallace and George Sutherland, both in my opinion at the time of giving such moneys, bookmakers, and shared with W. H. Mulligan in bribes given by them and by a person or persons unknown for the purpose of dissuading the said Mulligan and L. W. Cuthbert from doing their duty as police officers."

MOVED TO LOS ANGELES

Chief Mulligan was fired from the 750-man force at his own request October 31, 1955, and later moved to Los Angeles as a landed immigrant.

Mr. Tupper, in declining to make recommendations on legal action, made note of the former chief's departure.

". . . I say no more than would be said by any person sharing my opinion that two police officers have engaged in corrupt practices; one, and the junior of them, stood to face and admit the allegations against him; the other did not."

Det. - Sgt. Cuthbert was discharged earlier this month on charges arising from his attempted suicide last June. He is working as a security guard for an oil company in Vancouver.

He testified before Mr. Tupper that he had received a series of $500 payoffs from gamblers and split them "50-50" with chief Mulligan.

Mr. Bonner said Alex Pearson, solicitor for the attorney-general's department, assistant commission counsel Vic Dryer and Vancouver prosecutor Stewart McMorran have been named to form the three-man committee to study the reports of an RCMP team which worked with Mr. Tupper. They will also look over the transcript of evidence compiled during more than six months of intermittent hearings.

WALTER MULLIGAN

LEONARD CUTHBERT

SET UP LAST JUNE

The commission was set up June 25, 1955, after a series of articles appeared in Flash Magazine, a Toronto tabloid, charging corruption within the force and following a report of a Senate committee on drug addiction which criticized the Vancouver force for laxity.

The attempt a day earlier by Det.-Sgt. Cuthbert to take his own life in the police station with his service revolver also helped touch off the inquiry.

Mr. Tupper's interim report—dealing with administration only—was brought down in January.

In his final report, Mr. Tupper said there likely had been a pay-off by Chinese gamblers to members of the force, but that there was no evidence against individuals.

In Mr. Tupper's opinion, information had been supplied to the underworld on impending police action, but that there was no evidence "to implicate any named person therein."

ABSOLVED OF WRONGDOING

Alan Rossiter, now staff superintendent of the force, was cleared, in the opinion of the commissioner, of any suggestion of wrongdoing in his purchase of a television set from a transit company vice-president.

Deputy-chief Gordon Ambrose and Superintendent of Detectives J. C. Horton were cleared of charges made by Det.-Sgt. Cuthbert that they wished to share in gambling payoffs.

"The allegation against Inspector B. J. Jelley of improperly using police cars is, in my opinion, untrue and could not, with any honesty of purpose, have been made

Alabama U. Heads Refused Jury Trial

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)—A federal judge refused today in the Autherine Lucy case to permit university officials to be tried by jury.

Judge Hobart Grooms ruled on the University of Alabama officials request for separate trials by jury before getting into the heart of Miss Lucy's case. She is asking that the university's top echelon be held in contempt of court for suspending her from the school after three days of rioting over her admission.

The drama of Miss Lucy's appearance in a crowded courtroom was intensified by the arrival of Thurgood Marshall, negro lawyer, who was credited with a major share in winning historical civil rights victories in the U.S. supreme court.

Marshall told the court that the sole object of today's hearing is "to get her back into the university."

Marshall's first move as Miss Lucy's special lawyer was to request that conspiracy charges against university officials be removed from the contempt action.

Marshall, assisting Miss Lucy's regular lawyer, Arthur Shoresn, said an investigation could not turn up evidence that any university official had "anything to do with people milling around the university" during the time Miss Lucy was a student.

Judge Grooms accepted Marshall's request.

BEATRICE SUTTON

Until she completed elementary school in Vancouver, Victoria High School commercial teacher Miss Beatrice Sutton was a confirmed globe-trotter.

Born in London, Eng., the daughter of a mechanical engineer whose work took him around the world, the young Miss Sutton obtained her elementary school education in such untoward places as Manila and Hong Kong.

The rest of the family shares her claim to internationalism—her mother was born in Hong Kong, a brother in Manila and another brother in Yokohama.

Miss Sutton first came to Victoria at the age of six months in the early 1920's, and attended Quadra Street School for one year. Then began the moving, lasting nearly 10 years until she went to Kitsilano High and UBC, from which she obtained her BA in 1933.

Since then she has obtained her commercial qualifications in summer sessions at UBC and University of Washington.

But her first job was in an office rather than a school room. She worked for a paper company at Ocean Falls before taking her teacher training in 1937, then began teaching at Langley Prairie, staying two years.

The next two years Miss Sutton taught at Powell River and put in one year at Victoria High before the Second World War intervened.

As a lieutenant in the navy from 1943-45, she worked in operational research, and at war's end returned to Victoria to take up her present job.

Miss Sutton teaches all commercial subjects, assists with the square dance club and is co-sponsor of the Future Teacher's Club, largest in B.C. In the spring she instructs track, and grass hockey in the fall.

Outside school, her chief interest lies in amateur dramatics and she is presently secretary of Victoria Theatre Guild. She is also former secretary of Victoria School Drama Festival and served two years as secretary of Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

Her home is at 1002 Pakington, and parents reside in South Burnaby.

France Shakes Up Army High Command

PARIS (AP) — France today shook up its high military command amid reports of a clash on policy for dealing with the rebellion of Algerian nationalists.

Premier Guy Mollet's government appointed Gen. Paul Ely, 58, former member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's three-man military executive, as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, to replace Gen. Augustin Guillaume.

Guillaume, as resident-general in Morocco two and a half years ago, ousted Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef because of the sovereign's nationalist sympathies. Guillaume was known as the advocate of an iron hand in dealing with the Arab leaders of North Africa. Ben Youssef was recently returned to the Moroccan throne as a prelude to negotiations for the protectorate's independence.

Most Paris papers are critical of Mollet's call for the Algerian rebels to agree to a cease-fire or face a big French military effort to crush them.

First reports from the revolt-torn North African territory said both French and Moslems there also were disappointed by the premier's radio-television speech Tuesday. The Moslems thought he hadn't conceded enough to them. The French settlers had expected a stronger warning to the rebels.

An Algerian guerrilla leader in Cairo, Mohammed Ben Bella, warned that the rebels may seek Soviet arms if the French step up their military campaign.

Mollet set no time limit for acceptance or rejection of his cease-fire plea, but promised to hold "genuinely free elections" within three months after fighting stops to produce an Algerian leadership with which France could negotiate.

. . . LIBERALS

Mr. Sommers charged in his statement of resignation that "cut out and get out" logging interests, whom he did not identify, supported by Stuart Keate, publisher of The Victoria Times; Liberal leader Laing, Bruce Brown (Liberal, Prince Rupert), George Gregory (Liberal, Victoria), and J. Gordon Gibson, former Liberal MLA for Lillooet, are conducting a campaign of "distortion, falsehoods and villification unparallelled in this province."

He said this campaign is aimed at "defeating the government," and "discrediting myself as minister of lands and forests."

The resignation from the cabinet of Mr. Sommers has renewed speculation British Columbia may be in for a general election campaign this year.

ELECTION?

But some opposition MLAs feel the possibility of an election has been completely thrown out by the Sommers-Sturdy case, and the Stewart-Cassiar road probe during the current session.

"The premier would never go to the people now," said one MLA.

The fireworks failed to explode Tuesday night, when well over 100 persons waited expectantly in the public galleries for a debate on Mr. Sommers' resignation.

Mr. Sommers' resignation from the cabinet is without precedence in British Columbia—coming as it did while the legislature was in session.

RE-APPOINTMENT

This is taken as an indication that Premier Bennett will reappoint Mr. Sommers to his cabinet if the charges inferred in the Sturdy case are proven unfounded.

Mr. Williston is now also minister of lands and forests, while Mr. Kiernan assumed the portfolio of minister of mines.

Alec Matthew (SC-Vancouver-Centre) who is chairman when the House sits as a committee to consider estimates, may throw a wrench into Opposition plans to air the Sommers issue.

"I am not yet decided," he said, when asked whether he would rule any discussion on Mr. Sommers out of order since he is no longer sitting as minister of lands and forests.

"I won't say, because I haven't make up my mind."

A constitutional expert in the government buildings said he felt any decision to halt "men who have been accused of something from answering the accusation," would be a wrong decision.

Children See Through Eyes Of Dead Priest

Was Dying Wish Of Cancer Victim

MILAN, Italy (UP) — A Catholic priest gave today in death possible sight to two blinded war orphans he had ministered to in life.

Before he died in the agony of cancer Tuesday night, the priest, Don Carlo Gnocchi, known as "The Angel of The Children," asked that his eyes be given to two blind children.

This morning a 12-year-old boy an an 18-year-old girl underwent operations in the Milan Ophthalmic Clinic that may restore their sight. Doctors pronounced the operations successful.

The operation, transplanting of the corneas from the dead priest, was performed by Prof. Cesare Galeazzi, a Milan eye specialist to whom Don Gnocchi had confided his last wish.

The two who may recieve the gift of sight were Angelo Colagrande, 12, and Amabile Battistello, 18, both of whom had been blinded by an accident at an early age.

Officially the operation by one of Europe's best eye specialists was against the laws of Italy which forbid the cession of any part of the human body even after death.

But to an Italy mourning the loss of a kindly priest who devoted his life to the young victims of war there was no attempt to enforce the law—article five of the civil code and article 410 of the penal code.

Don Carlo died Tuesday night, smiling to the moment of his last words when he said, "My friends, I pass to you my work." He entered a state of agonizing pain then, lapsed into a coma and died ten minutes later.

Earlier he had told Galeazzi, "I want one of my blind children to see again with my eyes."

North Van Fire Dept. 'Inadequate'

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial fire marshal has condemned the district's volunteer fire department as "inadequate to cope with more than small fires within a short distance of the fire hall."

He recommended that the city and district departments amalgamate to give better protection at a more reasonable cost.

Chief Scott, in ill-health for some time, was commended in the report for his "capable guidance."

The survey conducted by the fire marshal's office said: "Although the men are . . . of good quality and willing, they are hampered by lack of training facilities, adequate apparatus and equipment.

The report recommended the district's volunteer system be dispensed with and five full-time firemen be hired to make up for the loss of 43 volunteers.

had any proper investigation been made."

Inspector Peter Lamont and Neil MacDonald, a former detective, were pronounced innocent by Mr. Tupper of charges that they received a series of $300 payoffs from gambler William (Mugs) Corning.

Mr. Tupper's report said that, in his opinion, Helen Douglas was speaking the truth when she said chief Mulligan told her he had received $38,000 "from gamblers." The woman testified that she and the police officer had been lovers from 1945 to 1949.

NO EVIDENCE FROM CHIEF

"Concern and bewilderment has been expressed . . . over the failure to secure Mulligan's evidence before the inquiry," the report said.

"It is to be regretted that this was not heard and in particular that commission counsel were left without his help to search for any support to his statement . . . that he was the object of a conspiracy between a Vancouver newspaper, a member of the legislative assembly and certain police officers."

Mr. Tupper did not believe that objections over the manner in which the commission was handled were the "true cause of Mulligan's withdrawal from participation . . . .

"When an issue impends and one party has no hope of success, it has been an age-long practice for him to withdraw behind a cloud of smoke, arrows or other concealment."

Of testimony regarding chief Mulligan's affair with Miss Douglas, Mr. Tupper said:

"CORRUPT BEHAVIOR"

He said her testimony "explains, at all events in part, the corrupt behavior of a man capable in many ways, who impressed the members of the police commission with his abilities as well as the public at large."

Helen Douglas is the maiden name of a woman permitted to testify veiled and with her married name secret and who said chief Mulligan paid $2,000 for a farm in the Fraser valley for them to withdraw to "when the time came for him to leave the force."

Of Cuthbert, the other chief accuser of Mulligan, Mr. Tupper said:

"I cannot accept a serious part of his testimony, but I entertain no doubt of his own guilt and that it arose through his complicity with Mulligan.

". . . While I cannot accept it as possible that there was no complicity with Cuthbert in his corruption by any member of the gambling detail of which he was in charge, there is no adequate evidence to support any allegation of corruption against any one of the other eight members of that detail. . . ."

He cleared without qualification five other detectives — "In my opinion any allegation of corruption against (George) Kitson, (James) Frew, (R.S.) Harrison, (T. F.) Stokes and (J. T.) McHardy . . . is untrue."

Mr. Tupper described Flash as "a scandal sheet" and went into the history of Ray Munro, its former west coast correspondent.

"I do not think it unjust to conclude that Munro thinks of the world in terms more suitable to a melodrama than to the usual, though sometimes tragic, circumstances of everyday life. I think he is unable to dispense with sensationalism and has found in times of peace that it arises most easily in exposing the wrongs of others. This latter end has seemed so important to him as to excuse the means of its attainment."

The report said Mr. Tupper accepted "as true" the testimony of Jack Price, former Vancouver alderman and one-time member of the legislature.

SOUGHT POLICE IMMUNITY

Mr. Price testified that he interceded with two men he knew as gamblers to have them extend police immunity to another gambler.

There was only fleeting reference in the report to Harry Whelan who, as uniform superintendent of the force, fatally shot himself about three hours before he was due to face cross-examination.

". . . Events recorded . . . in this report, which in my opinion took place, make up a tragic narrative of personal temptation and wrongdoing."

After hearing 126 witnesses and handling 144 exhibits during the 40 sittings which cost approximately $30,000, Mr. Tupper wrote:

"This inquiry is in no sense the trial of any individual.

"Yet as this report gravely affects individuals, it is satisfactory to be able to say that all conclusions reached herein upon the conduct of any person are founded on the evidence . . . which, in my opinion, would have been admissible in a court of law."

17 West European Countries To Develop A-Power Network

PARIS (UP) — Seventeen West European nations voted today to pool their resources for the development of an atomic power network which may be fueled initially by the United States.

They left room inside their new cooperative for a parallel development of a six-nation "Euraton" atomic pool with supra-national authority.

They also decided to give serious consideration to President Eisenhower's offer of atomic fuel last week.

Today's decisions were made by representatives of the organization for European economic cooperation, formed originally to administer Marshall plan aid from the United States.

IN PARLIAMENT

Appropriations Cause Fireworks

(From Times News Services)

Opposition members today pressed their campaign to expand the powers of the House appropriations committee and spread the work of examining government expenditures among more members.

The House Tuesday night defeated, 134 to 67, a bid by E. D. Fulton (PC, Kamloops) to empower the committee, which will study the 1956-57 appropriations of four government departments, to subpoena witnesses and examine government records.

Ross Thatcher (Ind., Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) said he also had a proposal to make in the form of a motion, and was expected to air it today. In a speech Tuesday, Thatcher said the way in which parliament examined the spending program of Canada—the biggest business in the country—was the most unbusinesslike he could imagine.

Drew Issues Challenge to PM

The vote Tuesday night came immediately after Opposition leader George Drew challenged Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent to get into the debate. Establishment of the appropriations committee was proposed by Mr. St. Laurent, but he left it to Finance Minister Walter Harris, government House leader, to pilot the formal motion through the chamber.

"I ask the prime minister," Drew said, "to give any reason to this House why we should not have the power that an ordinary committee would have to inquire into facts and to make recommendations that would assist the government as well as other members of this House and the public in regard to affairs which are entrusted to our responsibility."

Mr. St. Laurent made no move to get the floor of the House before the vote was taken. The committee, unlike most committees of the House, has no power to make recommendations, subpoena witnesses, or call for documents. It cannot delve into past years' records.

After the vote Donald Fleming (PC, Toronto-Eglinton) took the floor and in a stormy crossfire exchange with Liberal backbenchers declared: "The government, looking down from its lofty height (interruption) does not deign (interruption) to participate (calls of "stand up") in a discussion of this subject . . ."

"Stand up, Donald," said an unidentified backbencher.

"I will stand up and I hope some of you over there will have the grace and courage to stand up and let your voices be heard," Fleming shouted.

"Most of you are mute, and you might as well have been born mute for all the good you accomplish here.

"The prime minister maintains his frigid silence," Fleming added. "He has nothing to say to the House on this motion which stands in his name. He chooses to ignore the House."

Cat-Calling Features Debate

Earlier the House passed, 147 to 70, a farm bank-loan bill and then immediately adopted a $32,000,000 subsidy for wheat storage to help western farmers. A motion to delay passage of the measure, proposed by John Diefenbaker (PC, Prince Albert) was defeated 139-70. Another, to send the bill back to committee to reconsider the 5 per cent interest to be charged on the loans, was moved by Hazen Argue (CCF, Assiniboia) and defeated 146-71.

The two measures were later introduced in the Senate, where government leader W. Ross Macdonald asked for the upper house to put them at the top of its order paper. Two Liberal senators promptly asked, "What's the urgency?"

The bills were scheduled to come up for second reading in the upper house today.

Speaker Beaudoin interrupted G. H. Castleden, Yorkton, to issue his warning that he would use his powers to the full limit.

When the speaker "names" a member it means automatic expulsion from the Commons for as long as the House leader—now Finance Minister Harris—proposes.

The action has rarely been used in the past. The last time was during the Second World War. Liguori Lacombe, former Independent member for the Quebec constituency of Laval-Two Mountains, was named and suspended for a short period.

A 30-minute CBC television profile of Governor-General Massey cost $9,000 to produce, the government said Tuesday in a parliamentary return. The tabled reply for Ross Thatcher (Independent, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) said the idea for the feature carried on the program "CBC Newsmagazine" Feb. 5 originated with the publicly-owned CBC.

Canada is "hopelessly behind the times" in permitting its Parliament to deal in divorce, a Saskatchewan senator-lawyer declared Tuesday night.

Senator Walter Aseltine, member of the Senate's divorce committee for 20 years, told the upper house that he considers parliamentary divorce "the most antiquated system in the world."

"No other Parliament handles it—we're hopelessly behind the times," said the 68-year-old Progressive Conservative from Rosetown, Sask.

Works Minister Winters admitted yesterday that the departmental ship Hilunga which foundered recently on the west coast had been bound for a voyage in waters for which she was not designed.

He added, however, that the ship was within its limits when it went aground.

Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra) asked whether it was true the Hilunga was en route to the Queen Charlotte Islands. Would that not take it into waters in which it was not supposed to be used?

"I think that is the case," Mr. Winters replied. "But the fact is that she foundered within waters for which she was designed."

City Vote Ordered On New Ellice Span

Victoria voters will be asked, probably within two months, whether they favor construction of a new Point Ellice bridge.

Council went over the top of its bridge fund target Tuesday when it ratified sale of city lands to Dominion Stores Ltd. for $92,000. According to Mayor Percy Scurrah the bridge can now be built without the necessity of borrowing.

The sale and the motion for a referendum were the only items of business at a special council meeting. Both motions had been made possible by a parks committee meeting earlier in the day when settlement was reached between the city and 500 petitioners who opposed the sale of land to the food store chain.

Grudging approval to the sale was obtained from six petitioner delegates, headed by Mrs. Catherine Lister, after the city promised to build two play areas close to Burnside school to replace a play area on the land sought by the super market.

A play lot on Alpha street which was offered was refused and it was only after lengthy negotiation that a compromise offer of lands on Sumas street was accepted.

$500,000 PROJECT

Mayor Scurrah, who told council earlier that Dominion Stores planned a $500,000 development on the land commonly known as Burnside Park, predicted further development in that area.

"Whether we like it or not that's going to be a commercial area. Developments are planned all out Douglas and a big development is planned either out Burnside or at the Douglas junction.

"There may be a development in the Baker brickyard area. Attempts are being made to buy that property now," he stated.

After passing the land sale and the decision for a referendum, council went into committee for clause-by-clause study of the new zoning by-law.

Only major change in the by-law as presented was effected with respect to maximum building heights.

A clause required new buildings of more than six storeys to have seventh and higher storeys set back one foot for every two feet of additional height.

The six-storey limit was changed to 10 storeys.

New Work Law Endorsed 43-1 By Legislature

George Gregory (L.-Victoria) cast the lone negative vote Tuesday when the legislature gave second reading to a bill designed to stop racial and religious discrimination in employment.

The vote was 43 to 1.

Mr. Gregory stressed he opposed discrimination as much as anybody in the House, but was against the bill on the grounds it is "unnecessary," "it won't work," and it's "ridiculous."

DOESN'T EXIST

Mr. Gregory said the legislation, to be called the Fair Employment Practices Act, is unnecessary because such discrimination is "virtually non-existent" in the province.

He said the new law won't work, and quoted strong provision against discrimination in the United States constitution.

He termed the bill ridiculous because, for example, it would prevent a railway company from advertising for a Negro porter, or for a Kosher packing house to advertise for a Jewish butcher.

Girl Escapees Caught Aboard Greek Freighter

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three girls from the girls' industrial school here were recaptured Tuesday aboard a Greek freighter docked in the harbor.

One of the girls leaped into a safety net while being escorted from the ship. She was recaptured while attempting to jump into the water from the net.

Police said she went berserk when returned to the school and cut her arms and hands by smashing windows. One officer was bitten on the hand.

Dead Rapist-Slayer Once Listed 'Killer'

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says Gerald Taylor Walker, found last week shot to death with slain choir-girl Nancy Moore in a car near Brockville, Ont., was labelled a potential killer three years ago in Edmonton.

The newspaper says Walker then was sentenced to 2½ years in penitentiary for wounding a 16-year-old girl with intent to commit grievous bodily harm.

It says Mr. Justice Boyd McBride, who sentenced Walker in the Supreme Court of Alberta, said "anyone who goes around this country stabbing and using a knife is a potential killer."

Walker was acquitted on a charge of rape in connection with the offence. He spent four months under observation after his counsel said he was a psychopathic personality.

Rev. William Thornloe, minister of Glen Buell United Church where Miss Moore was a soloist, said he was shocked to hear about Walker's past.

"I think he should have been kept someplace for his own good and the safety of others," the minister said.

Milk Price Cuts Seen for Island

Cheaper milk prices on Vancouver Island were indicated by Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan in the legislature Tuesday.

The minister said the lower prices may be brought about by the new Milk Industry Act, now before the House in bill form.

Debate on second reading of the bill was adjourned by Mr. Kiernan to allow opposition members time to study the new measure.

The bill implements the recommendations of Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne's royal commission study of the milk industry.

The minister told the House grading of farmers who ship milk will be completed by midsummer.

When this takes place, he predicted B.C. will have "as good a product as can be found anywhere on the continent."

He said that as far as milk production on the island is concerned, it would always be behind the demand. This was because expansion in the industry was not keeping up, nor had it ever, with the population increases, he said.

The Pinch-Hitter

THE BENNETT GOVERNMENT evidently thinks that if it distorts the taxation policies of the Federal Government frequently and loudly enough the distortion will be accepted by the public. Thus after members of the provincial cabinet have had their fling at the proposed federal-provincial agreement, Mr. Einar Gunderson is employed as a kind of pinch-hitter.

Speaking in Vancouver last week, Mr. Gunderson said that under the formula known as Plan C British Columbia "would only get about $2,000,000. But Quebec would get about $41,000,000. There's a fine hand behind it somewhere, particularly when I look at that $41,000,000."

Mr. Gunderson has been singularly unsuccessful as a politician but he is a trained accountant. He should be able to understand figures. He must know, therefore, that British Columbia, Quebec and all other provinces would be treated exactly alike under Plan C. There can be no special treatment for any of them.

Certainly Quebec would receive in revenues some $41,000,000 a year more than it is receiving now while British Columbia's increase would be about $2,000,000. But the reason for this difference, as Mr. Gunderson well knows, is that in the past Quebec, for its own reasons, has refused to accept the subsidies paid to the other provinces, including British Columbia.

Naturally, if Quebec enters the new scheme and receives the same treatment as the other provinces its revenue gains will be proportionately high. It will not receive any special bonus but will merely attain, for the first time, a position of equality.

Mr. Bennett does not wish British Columbia to attain a position of equality. He wants special favors from the federal treasury. He demands from Ottawa the sort of bonus which, quite wrongly, he says Ottawa is offering to Quebec.

The Bennett Government never notes another fact—that there is no limit to the taxes which it can impose in personal income, corporation profits and succession duties. It can levy on them as it pleases and squeeze out all the revenue it desires.

As its appetite for revenue is unlimited and its expenditures without equal in Canada on a per capita basis, the Government can fix its tax rates to suit itself. Ottawa cannot stop it. The Federal Government says only that it will exempt the British Columbia taxpayer from federal taxes up to a certain amount. Above that exemption level the taxpayer would have to pay two sets of taxes on the same income.

To most British Columbians, however, it will appear that a provincial government able to finance its present huge budget is getting quite enough revenue and levying quite enough taxes.

Apart from his distortion of federal policy Mr. Gunderson's position in this argument is peculiar. He is supposed to be a civil servant, entirely divorced from politics. Yet he is out making purely political speeches before Social Credit Party associations. He is acting in public as a member of the Government and a partisan campaigner.

No one will deny Mr. Gunderson's right to engage in politics so long as he does not pretend to be a civil servant, paid as such. He cannot properly be both a politician and a civil servant.

If any member of the civil service except Mr. Gunderson were to take any part in the affairs of a political organization he would be instantly, and rightly dismissed. Mr. Gunderson is not reprimanded, however, when he abandons the role of a non-partisan expert and appears in the role of an active politician. And the Government does not object if he distorts the known facts.

Playing Our Game

MR. DULLES' ESCAPE FROM the brink of war to a plateau of stability has been conducted with remarkable speed and dexterity. He tells the American Senate that Russia, having failed in its former methods of overt expansion, has decided at last to imitate the United States' peaceful foreign policy. The United States, he adds, can beat Russia at this game.

Obviously the secretary of state's latest disclosure is intended for home consumption in an election year. The Republican Party is running on a slogan of "Peace and Prosperity." It can claim credit for both. The nation is at peace, at least technically, and it is more prosperous than ever. No better election climate for a government can be imagined. Naturally, therefore, Mr. Dulles is anxious to emphasize the prospects of peace as he was emphasizing the dangers of war at this time last year.

But there are dangers in overemphasis on either side. The danger of Mr. Dulles' present reassuring statements is that they will lull the Western world into a false sense of security, make it difficult for governments to maintain their defence budgets and undermine the determination of the NATO nations.

When the United States Government says through its responsible spokesman that the Russians have been tamed why should the free peoples continue to carry the present burdens of armament? Mr. Dulles does not intend to raise any such question. Actually his Government is increasing its defence budget slightly this year. But thoughtless and ignorant people will certainly misunderstand Mr. Dulles' reassurance.

In any case, if there is no immediate danger of military war, if the Russians have decided to play our game, they can still be very dangerous to us, perhaps more dangerous than ever. For the plain fact is that in the struggle of economic penetration, subversion and propaganda the Russians are making massive progress.

They are not really playing our game, of course, or following our methods of honest trade. They are only pretending to befriend poor nations in Asia and the Near East. They are conducting a bogus sort of trade, often at a loss to themselves, to assist their intended victims of the future. However they do it, they are certainly succeeding in their real objective of seduction and the expansion of their own power.

On the whole the cold war is not going satisfactorily for the West. The Governments of Washington, London and Ottawa know quite well that it i going badly, that they have yet to devise a policy to meet the new phase of competitive co-existence.

Mr. Dulles does not make the search for an adequate Western policy any easier when he says, or seems to say, that our dangers are passing. The dangers are new, or at least they wear new guise, but if we underestimate and evade them we shall be playing straight into the Russians' hands. They are not playing our game. If we are not careful we shall find ourselves playing theirs.

What About the Courthouse?

IN JANUARY PUBLIC WORKS Minister W. N. Chant won public applause for his announcement that a new courthouse would be built in Victoria.

When the estimates were tabled in the Legislature, Mr. George Gregory, Victoria's Liberal member, with others, failed to find any vote for the project.

This week Mr. Gregory asked Mr. Chant whether a definite site had been chosen, if plans had been drawn, the estimated cost of the building, the expected date of completion and when tenders would be called.

Mr. Chant brushed the inquiries aside.

As he contemplates his brusque and evasive replies, he might remember that these are questions of vital interest to the people of Victoria—some of whom elected him.

The people of this community want to know all that he can tell them about a new courthouse—and they will appreciate the fact that full details may not be available.

They do not wish to view the project merely as an excuse for Mr. Chant to speak in the manner of one "clothed with a little brief authority."

Alberni's 'Mountain Men'

IN RECENT YEARS PEOPLE OF this island have had occasion to give thanks and praise to alpinists of the Alberni region who have turned out, at their own hazard, to help climbers injured or in trouble high above the timber line.

The group is now forming a mountain rescue team. Officers have been elected and familiar names are included in the executive.

The good wishes of Victoria and other parts of British Columbia will be extended to the new organization. Individually many of its members have proved their ability and valour. Together may they achieve greater strength and usefulness in their own particular methods of becoming "their brother's keeper."

Not All the Weather Balloons Are Going One Way

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

JUST because this is the 29th of February, you needn't think I'm going to hand you any routine grossness about eligible bachelors (whatever that means) being pursued by half-witted maidens who think they can propose marriage only when an artifically preserved custom says they can.

Brock

If it ever was a genuine custom (which I somehow doubt) it lives today only in the minds of poor little hacks who have to be topical. "Topical" meaning to churn out the same ghastly rubbish at fixed intervals . . . in this case, four-year intervals, which is four times more merciful than articles about Saint Patrick's Day, be gorra and be jabers and be reasonable, do. "Emmet and demmet and be jiltses crazed and be jadeses whipt! schneezed the Gracehoper." That's only James Joyce talking, and not about Saint Patrick either, but if you want a nice quotation for along about seventeen topical days from now, I've seen worse.

HOWEVER, I don't mind talking about Henry the Eighth on the 29th awful day of this over-rated month. And if Henry wasn't proposed to by that little brown six-fingered minx, then nobody was ever proposed to by anybody. I'm referring to Anne Boleyn, or Bullen. Or, as it says on the Holbein drawing of her, Anna Bollein Queen. In a volume of Holbein drawings I have here, there is a query after that word Queen . . . as well there might be . . . it was a question mark that killed two saints (More and Fisher) and changed history.

But maybe Anne would have been less assertive if she hadn't had the wrong number of fingers. (I forget if she had six on one hand, or six on each.) Does this sort of thing alter one's character? I don't know . . . it certainly altered that of the comedian, Little Tich . . . those who knew him said Little Tich brooded about his twelve fingers all the time. Some historians believe Anne had a hard time persuading Henry to kill More. If the level of her aggressiveness had dropped by one finger (so to speak), things might have been different. Even as things were, she couldn't talk Henry into poisoning Catherine of Aragon, she who remained so stubbornly alive.

IT is the question of poison that brought Henry and Little Orphan Annie Boleyn into my mind during February. Not because I am thinking of poisoning anybody . . . nobody in particular, anyhow . . . if I had to poison one person I'd have to poison a million of them, as I always say in my good old democratic way.

No, the only reason I've been brooding on poison is this: from our local library I got G. R. Elton's book on England under the Tudors . . . it's quite a recent book. I haven't got it here with me now, so I can't give you full details about it. But I have made a note about one startling item in it. It says Henry didn't poison his first wife because he had a "superstitious dread of poison."

That phrase has been seething through my poor old wits ever since. "A superstitious dread of poison." That's the early sixteenth century for you . . . shreds of superstition everywhere, left over from the Dark Ages. Only with the R formation did men lose their superstitious dread of poisoning their wives, I suppose. Henry's early training must have been a shocking dose of tradition and old wives' tales, with a hopeless anti-poison bias. If there is one thing old wives hate, it is being poisoned, and hence their tales.

WHATEVER his early training was, he shook off many of its effects by dint of Home Study. Towards the end of his life, his ignorant old teachers wouldn't have recognized him. But he never shook off his superstitious dread of poison. When his disease reached his brain, he probably dictated imaginery memoes to imaginary shorthand writers, reminding him not to poison such of his wives as he fancied were still among those present. That was one inhibition that was built into him. Probably did him untold harm.

But while he was still sane, or what passed for sanity in Bluff King Hal, long before the spirochaetes got into his head, he must have had some spirited scoldings from Anne Boleyn. "Shall we do it now?" she says. "Do what?" says Henry, affecting an ox-like density that went very well with his new crew-cut. "Poison her," says Anne, "I've told you a hundred times."

"NO," says Henry, "I don't think so. It's hard to explain, Annie, but I just don't seem to want to, that's all." "You see?" howls Anne, snapping a great many fingers at him, "you privately educated boys are all the same. Steeped in prejudice. Emotionally immature. You're not adjusted. Henry Tudor, you are a Bad Citizen, that's what. I suppose you think it would bring you bad luck to poison anybody?"

"I hadn't thought of that," says Henry, "but it would certainly bring Catherine bad luck." "You dolt, that's exactly what we require," says Anne. "Not with poison, though," says Henry, "I don't like poison, Anne. I never did. It does things to me." "That's more ignorance," says Anne, "absolute blind medieval ignorance. You're not back in the 15th century now, you know. This is 1530 . . . the age of wonder drugs. Take strychnine, for example . . . there's a nice wonder drug if ever I see one." But Henry just gives her the old Charles Laughton look.

As Our Readers See It

"MY POSITIVE PROOF"

In view of the caustic editorial which you recently saw fit to write regarding my statements in the Legislature about the wonderful cures of cancer in some clinics in the United States, are you willing to personally investigate my positive proof in black and white?

And following that investigation, will you be willing to form and head a delegation of ministers, lawyers, cancer specialists and physicians to go to these clinics to investigate what really is going on, and to publish the complete findings of this committee for the benefit of the long suffering and dying public?

If you will promise to do this in the name of humanity, at the earliest possible date, I won't even ask you to print an apology. How you hurt me doesn't matter. But what such a report on the front pages of your valuable paper will do for thousands of poor souls who are living and dying in agony, is extremely important. Accept this challenge like a man.

LYDIA ARSENS, MLA.

P.S.—I trust you will print this letter with the same sense of responsibility which initiated your action in writing the editoral.—L.A.

"HUMANE SLAUGHTER"

I saw in Thursdays paper that the "Humane Slaughter Association's" proposals had been turned down because "The electrical and carbon-dioxide stunning are faulty and too expensive respectively."

Apparently in the eyes of the meat packers, the alleviation of fear and suffering is not worth the extra expense—a most extraordinary and callous stand to take.

In the United Kingdom and Scandinavian countries advanced humane methods are used, and if they can do so, so can we.

Also to those who are indifferent to methods, the meat in Britain and Denmark is superior to Canadian.

As women do most of the buying of meat for their families, surely they could do something to improve conditions through some of their dominion-wide organizations.

Mr. P. R. Stratton is the president of the Association and I am sure would be glad to furnish any information required.

KEEP POLITICS CLEAN

The British Parliamentary system is predicated on a two party system in order to assure stability. We should strive for a continuance of that system, keep politics clean at all times. That can only be done by more voters expressing themselves and becoming more interested and active in the parties.

Election of any government on an overall minority vote is not healthy.

Many unkind and ungrateful things have been said about the older parties and the men who have given much to create good and honest government. The very fact that the present Socred Government has been unable to find (with access to all records) any wrong doing by their predecessors speaks for itself, for, I have no doubt but that, if they could find anything they would broadcast it from the housetops.

FOOD FOR THE SOUL

Members of the present B.C. provincial government, would be well advised, as would all right thinking Canadians, to heed the words of the Earl of Athlone, when he said: "Today there exists in the world, in all classes of society, a veritable revolt against the divine law, against the moral law, which they wish to eliminate from the education of it's youth, and the government of it's nations. Education without religion is like a barren land, and a country without religion sooner or later marches to its doom."

Children need food for their bodies, food for their mind but particularly do they need food for their soul. Why then, are parents of children, obligated, through matters of conscience, to send their children to schools where they receive some religion with their education, so unjustly penalized by being forced to pay taxes, which under the B.N.A. act is their democratic right to have for free.

Thank goodness there is one Liberal member left, Bruce Brown, Prince Rupert, who appreciates the support given to his party for over forty years, by the people who have to build and maintain these schools with no help from the government.

Case for the Indian

Your editorial "Privilege for the Indian," (Feb. 23rd) is encouraging evidence that we recognize the existence of certain arbitrary policies which, because of their destructive impact on Indian pride, have automatically created among the Indians that state of spiritual depression which so often wrecks self-confidence. Such a belief in personal ineffectuality generally leads to demoralization.

"Privilege" not only entails the giving of that which is due but also the responsibility of the privileged to use his liberties wisely. Integration on this level necessitates interdependence, mutual respect and some basis for mutual admiration. "Assimilation," as Dr. Belshaw points out, is quite a different and not altogether desirable objective.

Indians are proud of their ancestry and traditions. Many of them believe it a disgrace to lower themselves to the white man's level. We must admire this magnificent pride even if, to us, it seems wrongly directed. Remember, that we are dealing with living personalities; human material that is subject to the influences of strong emotions. Racial character traits ever survive subconsciously and influence conduct in spite of reason. Blood is often stronger than the will.

Dr. Belshaw bears out my former contention that the Indian can gain a higher status of social esteem if we now provide enticing opportunities for Indians to demonstrate their cultural assets. It is highly commendable that our anthropologists have made our museums storehouses for examples of native craftsmanship and records of their past customs and achievements, but, today we need as well, physicians who will endeavour to heal the wounds inflicted by our former mistakes and revive the still living talents of our Indian people.

Your "World's Tallest Totem" is now an excellent stimulus to public appreciation of Indian talent. When this objective is achieved, why not proceed to implement the development of other outstanding Indian dramatic talents? Make the Indians believe that we recognize them as an asset; a class apart, if you like, but a class esteemed and whose individuality and integrity, as Indians, we want preserved.

Dr. Coue and Mr. Dulles

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP From Washington

IN his appearance before the Senate foreign relations committee, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has now elevated the practice of Coueism to the status of a major technique of American foreign policy.

Joseph

For those whose memories do not go back so far, Dr. Coue was an amiable, bearded pseudo-physician who brought a new panacea out of France in the 1920s. By taking thought, said Coue, you could cure yourself of anything from a hernia to the blind staggers. All you had to do was to repeat often enough, with enough loud conviction, that "Every day, in every way, everything is getting better and better."

The fad caught on for a while; but after a bit it was observed that the blind staggerers went on staggering and the hernia sufferers could not do without their trusses. Now, however, the Coue cure-all has been resurrected from obscurity, with the august endorsement of the secretary of state of the United States.

What Secretary Dulles told the Senate foreign relations committee, in brief, was that the Soviet Union was now losing the cold war. "One thing is certain," he declared with exalted conviction. "The unity of the free world has caused the Soviet policy to fail, and right today they are trying to figure out a better one . . . At this moment in Moscow they are having to revise their whole program. If we in this country had to admit that, we would be advertised all over the world as having failed. They have failed."

UNSUPPORTED

These statements are truly remarkable, for several rather simple reasons, they are wholly unsupported by a shred of intelligence data. They are not believed by any of Secretary Dulles' own ambassadors. They are not believed, either, by any member of the higher staff of the state department, with the possible exception of one or two courtiers who have a knack of believing what is currently expedient. And they are not believed, finally, by any leader among our major allies.

Except for John Foster Dulles, expert opinion unanimously attributes the important changes in the Kremlin's policy line to a new self-confidence, derived from the great improvements in Soviet military posture and gains in heavy industry which Dulles himself mentioned to the senators.

Before he became a minority of one, even Secretary Dulles used to hold this same view. In earlier briefings of the press, Dulles himself has frankly stated that the Kremlin's abandonment of the rigid and brutal Stalinist line in favor of a more flexible and less doctrinaire policy had greatly increased the dangers and risks of the free world. It would be interesting, then, to know what has changed the secretary's mind.

Certainly the hard facts of the world situation do not offer any support to the new Dulles' view that "every day, in every way, everything is getting better and better." Throughout almost all of Asia, the Communists are making such rapid and disturbing progress that two warm Eisenhower supporters and extremely acute observers, John Cowles and Paul Hoffman, have just returned from Asian journeys to raise the alarm in this country.

In the Middle East, the outlook is so dark that leading members of Secretary Dulles' own staff have been quoting the odds on an Arab-Israeli war as about 50-50 either way. Even if the war danger is surmounted this year, moreover, it is universally admitted that the new Communist political offensive in the Middle East has already scored brilliant successes. It is also becoming clear that Communist infiltration in certain of the Arab states is now very far advanced.

DETERIORATION

Even in the citadel of the Western alliance, in Western Europe, the situation shows signs of grave deterioration. France is in chaos, and will hardly emerge from chaos without the loss of the position in North Africa that makes France a major power. Britain, too, is in the midst of an acute economic crisis. Moreover, Far Eastern and Middle Eastern revenues are all that balance Britain's books; and thus the Communist pressure in those areas now threatens Britain with irretrievable bankruptcy of a sort that would destroy Britain's great power standing.

Stewart

Even in West Germany, American policy rests solely on the frail foundation of a wonderfully brave but very old and very ill man, Chancellor Adenauer. The future German army is not shaping well. And almost every American observer on the spot agrees that if anything happens to Adenauer, Germany will move rather rapidly towards a neutralist position, probably leaving NATO to buy German reunification.

Altogether, it is not a pretty picture. But perhaps the Coue method really will work in foreign policy, although it was a dud in medicine.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Wearing Clothes for Luck

LONDON—Dress designer Leo Passinger of this town has been talking about something I've known about but which up until now I had never heard anyone give a name to. He's been having a few things to say about what he calls "memory clothes."

Reyburn

He says that one of the headaches about producing clothes for women is that so many of them have firm likes and dislikes about certain things based solely on something they are reminded of.

For instance, a woman might demand a particular neckline or color or material for a dress which he doesn't think appropriate. But she insists because it was when she was wearing that shade of red, say, she met dreamboat and it blossomed into her present ecstatic marriage. Therefore it is a lucky color. Wear it some more and she'll have some more luck.

Or, by the same token, she may have some bad luck when wearing a dress with a flared skirt — and she won't touch a dress with a flared skirt again, even if she thinks it looks terrific.

★ ★ ★

How well I know this business of what I can now refer to as memory clothes. My wife is an old campaigner at it.

I'll say to her sometimes, "What ever happened to that green dress of yours I like so much? You never seem to wear it any more."

I'll never wear it again. It's unlucky. The first time I wore it was at that party, you remember, when that woman was so terrible to me and we had that awful evening. And the second time I wore it, you remember what happened. It was that night that . . ."

"All right. It's unlucky."

I think my wife—along with most women, as far as I can gather—has every article of clothing in her wardrobes and cupboards tabulated on this memory basis as lucky or unlucky. And I think they even have degrees of luck-bringing.

Wear the blue sweater and it will bring in moderately pleasant day . . . the tweed skirt will guarantee the arrival of some good news . . . and as for that brown tailored suit—that's special, to be worn only when going to appointments (such as job hunting) from which much is expected.

Latest example was this matter of a slip which she had been wearing for the last couple of weeks. A publisher evinced interest in another novel I've just done and she decided to wear that slip every day until he made his decision. Laundering it every day had it looking a bit tired by the time the publisher did make up his mind, but my wife said in triumph: "I knew he'd buy it! This was the slip I was wearing the day you sold your first novel. Now you've sold two novels in six months—you can't deny that this is a lucky slip."

Before teaming up with my wife I used to regard clothes as merely something to put on because it is customary to wear clothes. But now she's got me going on this thing. I can't go out to any hopeful appointment without instructions from her as to which tie I should wear. She knows all the lucky ones.

I find now that each day when I go to put on a tie I will often reject one I really like because something will tell me it is one of the unlucky ones, even though I can't for the life of me remember how it got into the unlucky category. I've got a row of these unlucky ties, of good quality and in fine condition, and I suppose they'll stay there, unworn, forever. Can't give them away because it's hardly fair to pass on bad luck, even to a tramp at the door!

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Heredity

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation

Although I get some letters from persons who resent my mention of a poor nervous heredity as a cause of nervousness, I get, also, many kind and helpful letters from persons who say "You just go on talking about heredity; you are dead right: I ought to know, with the family that I have!" I recently received an interesting letter from an able, keen woman who, she says, has some bad days when she gets to "wringing her hands in an agony of nervousness." At times it is so bad she can hardly stand it, and then she has to go out and walk and walk until she is tired enough to quiet down. Also she has terrible headaches.

Dr. Alvarez

Where did she get all this? She says she got it mainly from her father who once had to go to a mental hospital. A brother of my correspondent, also, had several spells which required treatment in a mental hospital. Another brother had stomach ulcers and eventually got to drinking heavily, and another brother took to the bottle. A sister is well. The reason three out of four were hit so hard is probably that some mental trouble came also from the mother's side. The mother and one of the mother's sisters spent years in a mental hospital.

The writer says, "My sister and I were told years ago that insanity is never inherited, and I think this untruth helped us in that, for a time, it diminished our fear of mental disease. Today we know that mental disease is definitely inherited and so we have rejected the old lie. We are now facing facts resolutely: we are trying to live sanely, and we are trying to raise our children so sensibly that they can grow up into good and sane citizens.

I pray with this fine woman and her sister that they may succeed. Even with a bad nervous heredity, a person does not have to crack-up. It helps tremendously to live sanely and to cling to one's sanity. It can help greatly to consult a kind and able psychiatrist. Oftentimes the new sedative drugs help, and often, as when a person is badly depressed, it helps to have a few electroshock treatments.

TAPEWORM

Quite a few persons have tapeworm and do not know it. One cannot blame a physician for not thinking of this disease and examining for it, because so few North Americans harbor these worms. They are far more common in certain countries where beef, pork and certain fishes are eaten raw, just smoked or almost uncooked.

The two commonest tapeworms live in the bowels of cattle and hogs. Little cysts, from which the adult worms can grow, are scattered throughout the muscles (meat) of the animal. If a man eats such a cyst in which the parasite has not been killed by cooking he is likely soon to have a tapeworm in his bowel. A high percentage of dogs and cats have tapeworms but they are not of the type that grow in the bowel of man.

The surest way to avoid getting a tapeworm is not to eat almost-raw hamburger or sausage. The Finns, who like to eat raw fish, often get in their bowel a bad type of tapeworm which causes a severe anemia.

It is hard to say what symptoms are produced by tapeworm. Probably in most cases there are no symptoms that can be recognized. Usually the person involved must make the diagnosis by noting in the toilet bowl little segments of a worm. These look usually like white segments of a noodle. It is easy to tell what they are when a dozen or 100 segments are stuck together. They are especially likely to be passed after the person has taken a laxative, or when he has diarrhea: Then a yard or more of worm will come away, and the diagnosis will be easy.

As soon as a person finds that he is passing segments of tapeworm he should go to a physician. Unfortunately, it is not always easy to get rid of the head of the worm. One must get this because, otherwise, the thing will grow again. There are several drugs that can be given. Many years ago, while practicing in a tropical country, I found, as the Germans had found long ago, that the main secret in getting rid of tapeworm is not to take a purgative before the medicine is taken to numb the worm. I remember an engineer down in Mexico who had tried a dozen times to get rid of a tapeworm. One day, coming in off the desert, terribly thirsty, he drank several quarts of ice-cold root beer, and the worm meekly came away!

COLLAGEN DISEASES

People are asking me what is collagen disease? There are a group of fortunately rare diseases in which a number of parts of the body are injured. Apparently the basic trouble is some disturbance with one of the tissues that lines the arteries. If the injured arteries are found mainly in the skin, the person may have lupus erythematosis, a serious disease of the skin. Associated with this there may be marked changes in the heart, the kidneys, and other organs of the body.

Fortunately, today, many of the patients with this type of trouble can be tided over crises—such as used often to be fatal. The person can be helped much by cortisone or one of the related drugs, or by one of the synthetic anti-malaria drugs.

Air Force Expansion Ordered in Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (CP)—The Jordan government, acting on the request of King Hussein, a British-trained jet pilot, Tuesday decided to double its annual expenditure on the country's air force, reinforced by new jets. The British government gave 10 jets to Jordan's Arab Legion in December. Jordanian recruits will be sent to Britain shortly for flight training.

Half Ton of Gold Missing From Mine

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Mining circles report that the Morrow Velho Mine owners are investigating the disappearance of about half a ton of gold dust from their property in the last 15 years.

Mine officials were reported to have arranged for sale of the dust privately instead of including it with the gold refined and stamped for shipping. It is understood the loss of the gold dust was reported by employees who had been promised a share of the profit from its sale and were never paid.

HOME GARDEN

Time Right To Plant Primulas

By HILDA BEASTALL

Leap-year-day is a "free" day in my opinion, and as a gardener I feel free to let my mind wander ahead into spring days.

Milder days of intermittent sunshine are on the way, and there is no better way to prepare for their enjoyment than to plant now some of the fragrant primulas with their delightful range of colors.

Hilda

Possibly the best known here is Primula polyantha, the polyanthus primrose, with flattish heads of many individual flowers. They have come through the winter unscathed. The buds are forming, some show color, their season of bloom extending for 12 weeks.

While flowering well in either full or partial sun of springtime, P. polyantha requires some shade during summer, and a constant supply of moisture. This may be accomplished by planting under deciduous (leaf-loosing) trees or shrubs in rich, humusy soil containing some coarse gravel. Or the plants may be lifted immediately after flowering, and replanted in a shady spot to grow for the summer.

P. auricula is another of the fragrant spring primulas. The rich decisive color contrasts never weary, and this species will stand more sun and less water than the foregoing.

For a spot partially shaded all summer, where the soil is rich and may be kept moist, P. denticulata will please. Its round heads of lavender, purple or white blossoms on stems a foot high appear in later spring, and succeeding heads of bloom often occur during the summer if the plants receive the necessary moisture.

Soccer Groups Claim $32,000 in Nanaimo

NANAIMO (BUP)—Nanaimo soccer groups are claiming $32,000 remaining from the sale of Nanaimo's Central Sports Grounds.

They oppose any further money from the sale being used at Beban park or by the Nanaimo Recreation Commission for programming park activities.

The groups urge that the Nanaimo Park Board decide where the money is to be spent and be given complete authority over city parks.

The views were expressed in a brief submitted to the parks board by Pete Hardcastle for the Nanaimo and District Juvenile Football Association.

Two soccer representatives claim the whole of the money gained by the sale of the land belong to soccer. They are Joe Sutton and Bob Menzies.

Patricia Bay Cemetery Plan Draws Protest of Residents

SIDNEY—Residents of Patricia Bay, Towner Park, and Ardmore will protest a move by Memorial Gardens (Canada) Ltd. to establish a cemetery on a 26-acre tract on West Saanich road.

An application was to be made today to the zoning board of North Saanich regulated area to rezone the land for burial purposes.

Already 126 residents have signed a petition protesting the move, and plan to attend a public meeting to be held on the application. Their contention is that the cemetery will lower property values and contaminate wells in the area.

The land in question was purchased from H. L. Witherby for $15,500. It adjoins the south side of Patricia Bay Airport property on West Saanich Road.

Residents also feel there is adequate burial space in churchyards of the North Saanich area to serve the needs of the area.

The proposed cemetery would be open to the whole of the Greater Victoria area.

Win Pulp Mill Parts Plants, MLA Advises

DUNCAN—Securing secondary industries to serve the pulp and paper mills on Vancouver Island should be uppermost in the minds of Chamber of Commerce members, according to Robert M. Strachan, Cowichan-Newcastle MLA.

Speaking at a Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce meeting Monday night, he said equipment needed by the mills will be provided in eastern Canada.

"With the completion of the mill at Crofton there will be four large pulp mills on the Island, all needing copper screens and rubber rollers now brought in from eastern Canada," he said.

LEARN PRODUCTS

"The chambers of commerce should take decided action to determine what equipment the pulp mills require which could be manufactured here, then go after getting industries to establish and supply the need.

"In addition to copper screens and rubber rollers," Mr. Strachan said, "there are other special items which I believe could be the basis for important industries on the Island."

AROUND AND ABOUT

With Jo Healy

CAYCUSE—Got a cough or cold? Eye-sore? Consumptions, headaches, or any other ills of mankind?

Does the orifice of the stomach need closing. The heat within need fortifying? Digestion need help and the spirits need fortifying; or does your heart yearn to be made lightsome?

Then have a cup of Tcha, Tay, or Tee; "by all physicians approved, this very wholesome and physical drink has many excellent virtues."

This tiny advertisement from a London, England, tabloid published Sept. 30, 1658, introduced an article appearing in a recent issue of "Mayfair." My eye caught the title "Tea Anyone? Or what Canadians don't know about the brew." I read on.

I learned some interesting facts about tea, the story was amusing and informative, but I was astounded to read that Canadians "enjoy only a lukewarm enthusiasm for tea."

This isn't a statement that I could contest with much authority; I've occupied, in my lifetime, the minutest portion of Canada. I do know that, from my earliest childhood, the institution known as "afternoon tea" has been as much a part of Canadiana (western hemisphere, anyway) as politics and picture shows.

By "afternoon tea" I don't refer so much to its usage for social entertainment as to the fact that I can't think of any Canadian home where I couldn't have my cup of tea; in fact, where it isn't inevitably offered, at least between the afternoon hours of one to three.

My earliest recollection of "afternoon tea" was when we small girls, starched, brushed, and combed to within an inch of our lives, were allowed a brief entrance into the well-bred murmur of the tea-party, there to be introduced formally to the ladies (most of whom became "aunts," to our utter confusion).

I was a trifle nonplused when, in later years, I came to make my home in this community and was asked to tea—a kindly way of introducing the new arrival.

★ ★ ★

Not only tea, but coffee, was offered. The table groaned under its toothsome weight of sandwiches and pickles, cakes of vast variety, ornate cupcakes, tarts and cookies. After the elegant restraint of the teas of mother's day (which consisted of cups of light and delicate tea which one sipped between dainty bits of thin, crustless bread-and-butter, and perhaps a slender wand of cake known as "lady-finger"), this largesse laid before me was overwhelming.

Millwright Wins Alberni Election

ALBERNI (CP)—George McRae, millwright, was elected to a seat on city council here in a by-election Tuesday.

He received 159 votes. Former alderman Elmar Churchill, who opposed him, received 128 votes. Three ballots were rejected.

The 290 persons who attended the polls represented 18½ per cent of those entitled to vote.

Mr. McRae will serve for the remainder of the two-year term of John Blackstock, who was re-elected in December and resigned this month to go to Vancouver.

Sixteen Findings Listed by Tupper

Reginald H. Tupper listed 16 "findings" in his final report on the Vancouver police department inquiry.

The one-man Royal Commission conclusions follow:

"1. The allegations against Traffic Superintendent A. H. Rossiter of corruptly securing a TV set and of favoring the B.C. Electric Railway Co., are patently untrue, and had there been any investigation whatsoever of the circumstances, would never have been made by any person in his senses and aware of the law of libel and capable of answering in damages.

"2. The allegation against Officer Ben J. Jelly of improperly using police cars, is in my opinion untrue and could not, with any honesty of purpose, have been made had any proper investigation been made.

"3. The allegations of fixing and plain stealing in the Vancouver police department rest on Munro's (Ray Munro, tabloid reporter) uncorroborated charge against Mullock and Burton, and charges against two constables unnamed, and in my opinion are untrue.

Police Chief Didn't Steal Piggy Bank

"4. The allegation against W. H. Mulligan of the theft of a so-called piggy bank is in my opinion untrue.

"5. The allegation against W. H. Mulligan of maintaining a woman in a flat in Haro Street is in my opinion untrue. Any attempt made to investigate this allegation before it was made would have demonstrated its untruth.

"6. The allegation arising through the innuendo that cases of liquor were improperly distributed amongst police officers through W. H. Mulligan for the purpose of corrupting them is in my opinion untrue.

"7. The allegation that an officer or officers of the Vancouver police department communicated information to the operators of the Western Canadian Employees Sweepstake of attempts being made to secure evidence against them is in my opinion untrue.

"8. The allegation that Inspector J. C. Horton requested or demanded from L. W. Cuthbert on his own behalf or on behalf of anyone else a share in moneys corruptly paid to Cuthbert is in my opinion untrue.

No Underworld Tipp-Off by Deputy Chief

"9. The allegation that Gordon Ambrose, deputy chief, directly or indirectly authorized or approved of any request or demand as is next above mentioned is in my opinion untrue.

"10. The allegations that any police officer named in this inquiry corruptly gave information to those in illegal practices, of police action proposed against them is in my opinion untrue.

"There is no reason to suppose that apart from the negligence permitting such information to go abroad, such information was given to one (Joe) Celona, and to those later mentioned as having engaged in corrupt practices with W. H. Mulligan and L. W. Cuthbert, but there was no evidence before the inquiry, or, as I am informed by counsel, available to implicate any named person therein.

"11. The allegations against Inspector Peter Lamont of having been paid corruptly moneys from either Celona or from an unnamed person in the drugstore of one Shaw are in my opinion untrue.

"12. The allegations against Peter Lamont, and (Officer) Neil MacDonald of having received envelopes likely to contain money from Rose Corning on the instructions of her husband, now deceased, are in my opinion untrue in respect to each allegation.

Cuthbert Accepted Bookmakers' Bribes

"13. In my opinion, L. W. Cuthbert between March 1 to May 15, 1949, corruptly accepted moneys as bribes to dissuade him from his duty as a police officer, from Peter Wallace and George Sutherland, both in my opinion at the time of giving such moneys, bookmakers, and shared with W. H. Mulligan in bribes given by them and by a person or persons unknown, for the purpose of dissuading the said Mulligan and L. W. Cuthbert from doing their duty as police officers.

"14. In my opinion any allegation of corruption against (Officers) Kitson, Frew, R. S. Harrison, Stokes, and McHardie, members of the gambling detail of the Vancouver police at times between March 1 and July 3, 1949, is untrue.

"15. While I cannot accept it as possible that there was no complicity with Cuthbert in his corruption by any member of the gambling detail of which he was in charge, there is no adequate evidence to support any allegation of corruption against any one of the other eight members of that detail within the time mentioned aforesaid, and it is therefore necessary and proper for me to express the opinion in respect to any one of them that such allegation is untrue.

"16. In my opinion, W. H. Mulligan in the year 1949 corruptly accepted moneys as bribes given for the purpose of dissuading him from pursuing his duty as chief constable in the Vancouver police department and accepted by him on that understanding."

A. H ROSSITER GORDON AMBROSE

Allegations against Vancouver police staff superintendent Allan Rossiter and deputy chief Gordon Ambrose are untrue, royal commissioner R. H. Tupper says in his final report. Rossiter had been accused of corruptly securing a TV set and favoring the B.C. Electric, and Ambrose was accused of tipping the underworld of police action proposed against them.

4-Man Police Board Aid to Mayor—Tupper

Proposal Would Relieve Heavy Burden On Chief Magistrate, Says Commissioner

The Tupper Report says a four-man police commission would relieve the mayor, as chairman, of a heavy burden.

R. H. TUPPER
. . . final report

But all members apart from the mayor, said Royal Commissioner R. H. Tupper, should be appointed not elected members.

"It has been said that I propose nothing new; that I would give the mayor a casting vote in the event of a disagreement among the appointed members and he has one now.

"This fails to grasp the purpose of the proposal. If it were adopted, the decision of the three appointed members would prevail, subject to the approval of council if the decisions involved the supply of funds."

He said the mayor would no longer be faced with determining any difference in policy which might arise between the two commissioners on a three-man board.

CONFUSION

Mr. Tupper said it is "of great importance" to maintain an appointed board with the mayor as chairman. The addition to the board of another elected representative would confuse what now is a clear difference in the functions of the police commissioners and the council.

Appointment of a four-man board was first recommended by Mr. Tupper in his interim report dealing with administration. The recommendation was approved by city council and requested in the legislature as an amendment to the city charter.

Commissioner Judge Rey Sargent resigned in protest against the move which has also been opposed by Ald. George Miller.

Miss Douglas Told Truth Says Prober

Royal Commissioner R. H. Tupper says he can find no good reason to doubt the testimony of witness Helen Douglas who described herself as Chief Walter Mulligan's girl friend.

In his findings on the months'-long inquiry into charges of corruption in the Vancouver police department, Mr. Tupper said:

"This would not be the first occasion when the tragic degeneration of a man's character arose from such a liaison as she recounted."

She said Mulligan had told her he had $38,000 put away.

Mr. Tupper said:

"It was plain that she was a reluctant witness. She destroyed diaries and photographs before Mulligan approached her to do so, not as an enemy who looked for revenge but as one disposed to help him.

"Only when her friends and relatives were embarrassed by questions from the police did she consult her solicitor and properly make herself, rather than others, available to give evidence.

"In my opinion, her account is a true one, if not a complete one. It explains at all events in part, the corrupt behaviour of a man capable in many ways, who impressed the members of the police commission with his abilities as well as the public at large."

Senate Endorses Bill Creating Church Council

OTTAWA (CP). — The Senate Tuesday night gave approval in principle to legislation to incorporate the Canadian Council of Churches, a grouping of 12 Protestant churches and other organizations. The bill will permit the council to acquire property, publish literature, maintain close relations with similar councils in other countries and set up an agency for common action by its members.

MANY CHARGES UNTRUE

Munro Melodrama Scored by Tupper

Royal commissioner R. H. Tupper today described former "Flash" magazine reporter Ray Munro as a man who thinks of the world "in terms more suitable to a melodrama than to the usual, though sometimes tragic, circumstances of everyday life."

Mr. Munro's charges of corruption in the Vancouver Police Force, as published in "Flash," were in large measure responsible for the calling of the Tupper Commission.

Many charges appearing in the articles published by the Toronto tabloid were termed untrue by commissioner Tupper in his final report on the six-month inquiry.

After recounting Montreal-born Munro's history as a wartime pilot in the RCAF, a police reporter, an actor, pointing out Munro's permission to carry a pistol, use a car equipped with red light and siren and his part in a lottery expose by a Vancouver newspaper, Mr. Tupper said:

"I think he is unable to dispense with sensationalism, and has found in times of peace that it arises most easily in exposing the wrong of others.

"This latter end seemed so important to him as to excuse the means of its attainment."

SCANDAL SHEET

Mr. Tupper said "Flash" has "justly been called a scandal sheet."

Mr. Tupper said Munro's background was pertinent to his inquiry, and gave a biographical sketch of the reporter in his lengthy report.

"He became a police reporter for a leading Vancouver newspaper, and was a competent photographer. He drove in a car specially equipped with red lights and a siren, to the scenes of accident, and seems to have had a wide acquaintanceship with police officers.

"He took a leading part in securing the apprehension of a degenerate who molested persons at night in Stanley Park.

"He has a permit to carry a revolver," said Mr. Tupper, "and the evidence before the inquiry disclosed that he showed a revolver to (Detective Sergeant) Cuthbert suggesting to him that suicide was his alternative to going to jail, or visiting Munro's lawyer.

"Under cross examination, he stated, the end justifies the means . . . a pernicious doctrine which has no place in its accomplishment for justice or truth."

DENIES AUTHORSHIP

Munro, who resigned as west coast correspondent of Flash and now publishes his own tabloid in Vancouver, refused to admit he wrote the Flash articles when he apeared as witness before Mr. Tupper's inquiry.

Munro, along with Flash and its editor, was charged with libel by Mulligan when the articles first appeared. The action has not been pursued.

IN THE HOUSE with ART STOTT

Warm Milk—No Red Meat

The galleries were crowded to capacity Tuesday afternoon and evening by spectators expecting the red meat of political battle. They were served warm milk.

After the spectacle Mr Robert Sommers made of his resignation from the portfolios of lands and forests and mines Monday night, the Tuesday sitting opened with an air of expectancy.

Visiting school groups claimed their share of seats in the galleries. All others were at a premium. This was to be the stuff of which political drama is made.

Yet there was a strange air of normality about the House as the sitting began. Members introduced bills or carried them to advanced stages in the usual drone of procedure. There were no early discussions.

Premier Bennett was his usual suave self in a charcoal suit, smooth hair, a little tired but not particularly concerned. Mr. Sommers was absent. Other cabinet members were engaged in their customary reading of documents.

Then the premier rose. The people in the galleries leaned forward. Was this to be his statement?

Mr. Bennett explained prosaically that the lands and forest departmental estimates had been delayed a little by the event of the night before and that the member from Fort George would take over the portfolio of lands and forests, while the member for Chilliwack would handle mines. That means Education Minister Williston takes the big job and Agriculture Minister Kiernan the mines.

That was the event of the day—no storm, scarcely more than a ripple. More will come, of course, but Monday night's resignation of Mr. Sommers caused no more splash Tuesday than a pebble cast in the sea.

Still the galleries stayed in their seats, waiting. It was a long wait—nearly four hours in the afternoon, an hour and a quarter at night.

Not that the House didn't do its share of work. Without the histrionics and dramatics of politics, it shifted a lot of legislation in the familiar rush near the session's end.

A Private Member Enters

Mr. Sommers, a private member for Rossland-Trail, entered the chamber at 2.20, taking a seat one down from that he had occupied as a minister. Mr. Williston had moved up in the meantime. But apart from looking drawn and arousing whispered comment in the galleries, his presence was unspectacular.

The Department of Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black underwent scrutiny, with Mr. Frank Howard, CCF, Skeena, expressing some highly uncomplimentary remarks about Kitimat housing and the way in which he said Alcan had moved quickly to its advantage on incorporation of the municipality.

It all seemed anticlimatic. The House discussed its new Fair Employment Practices Act, which Labor Minister Wicks sees as a step toward brotherhood and harmony, Opposition leader Webster sees as part of a bill of rights, Liberal leader Arthur Laing sees as no such thing, and Victoria's Liberal George Gregory doesn't see at all.

Mr. Gregory has no objection to employing people of other races, creeds and colors, but he's against the bill. He wasn't speaking like a Dixicrat, but there were in his arguments some of the points raised by Southerners who are against segregation. And when it came to the vote on division, Mr. Gregory stood alone in the negative.

The afternoon crowd began to drift away by 4 o'clock. School children had left at 3, that being closing time for class.

And when the Milk Bill, the most important piece of legislation yet introduced, came up for discussion, only a handful of spectators were left.

Mr. Kiernan gave a lecture on milk history to provide the background for his explanation of the changes. It was a reasonable outline, but not the material that had jammed the galleries at the start. Mr. Gaglardi slumbered innocently.

It was the same story at the evening sitting. Everybody sat tensely, waiting. Bills were introduced or given further readings and debate again swung to milk.

Mr. Bob Strachan asked permission to hold over discussion to study the bill. Encountering objection from the premier, he proceeded and was followed by Mr. Laing. Mr. Laing contributed his own chapter on lower mainland milk history, and was allowed to adjourn the debate, "because I'm just too tired to get my points across." He wasn't alone.

Marcel Blows Hot To Match Canucks

Pelletier Cougar Star; Olson Aggravates Injury

Victoria 2, Vancouver 2

By BILL WALKER

VANCOUVER—The Canucks were hot; but then so was Marcel.

And that made it even for Victoria Cougars against Vancouver Canucks here Tuesday night.

Marcel (Marcel Pelletier), the Cougar goalie, turned in a brilliant performance in the 2-2 tie between the two top teams of the western division of the Western Hockey League.

The tie preserved Cougars' three-point margin over the Canucks, moved them closer to the western division title, but may have been costly nevertheless.

"I can't put any weight on the leg," he said.

But the story here Tuesday was Pelletier.

The big fellow was superb. He stopped 51 Vancouver shots, often cheating Vancouver forwards on the doorstep as Canucks figuratively threw the works at the Cougars.

It wasn't that Cougars, in turn, didn't have their chances for victory. They did. And their good chances were better than those of the Canucks. But they were fewer in number.

Anderson Had It Won, But . . .

For example, Don Chiupka was in alone on a breakaway in the second period with the Cougars leading at the time, 1-0. He shot wide.

Jim Robertson shoved a rebound behind goalie Ray Mikulan later in the period, the puck skidding, parallel to, and inches from, the goal line before emerging at the other side of the net.

Doug Anderson had Mikulan beaten cleanly late in the third period, with the score tied at 2-2, but his backhand hit one post, slid along the goal line and nicked the other post on the way by.

But the pressure was always supplied by Canucks. It wasn't for lack of effort they didn't win.

Pelletier's two key saves came 20 seconds from regulation time and then early in overtime. The cheated victim each time was Vancouver's WHL scoring leader Phil Maloney.

It was a tense, ragged battle in the opening period. Olson gave the Cougars the edge when he tipped Arnott Whitney's blueline drive past Mikulan from the edge of the crease.

Canucks struck quickly for the equalizer with Olson serving a penalty in the second frame, and just as quickly to take the lead after Olson's penalty had expired, because of Ray Cyr's 30th goal of the year.

One a Gift, But Not the Other

Cyr's goal was a bit of a puzzle. The puck had been cleared behind the Victoria goal b rebounded in front and suddenly ended up in the net with no visible means of propulsion. It was less tha two minutes later that Fred Brown took a pass from Gordon Hudson and slapped an iced s ot into the corner to give Canucks their only lead.

Rugged, but not particularly rough, the game grew in fervor as it progressed.

Doug Macauley, who had been pulled down minutes earlier when apparently in the clear, but with no penalty, fired the ualizer for Cougars. His low shot came following a face-off in the C uck zon and caught Mikulan partially screened on the play. It was Macauley's 27th goal of the season.

Pelletier continued his thievery after that, and Anderson hit the piping on Cougars' best try.

Cougars seemed satisfied with a tie in extra time. The reason probably being that if they can win their remaining four home games, one against the Canucks, and take the measure of Canucks in their last meeting at Vancouver, then nothing the Canucks can do, can keep the Cats out of the championship.

As a start in that direction, Cougars meet New Westminster Royals at Victoria Friday.

MITT PROMOTERS HIT —FOR THE FULL COUNT

NEW YORK (AP)—The London Sporting Club, promoter of Monday night televised fights at St. Nicholas Arena here, was fined $5,000 and its licence revoked today by the New York Athletic Commission. Matchmaker Tex Sullivan's licence was revoked and Willie Gilzenberg, former partner, was fined $5,000 and deprived of his treasurer's licence.

Eight charges were filed originally by the commission with a ninth added later. The charges accused the club with consorting with known criminals and impeding the commission's recent investigation of the New York Boxing Managers' Guild.

WINGS REGAIN SECOND

Playoff Storm Brews in NHL

Detroit 4, New York 1

By The Canadian Press

The storm's still brewing around second place in the National Hockey League. And it's far from over.

For the last few weeks, Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers have been jockeying between second and third spot.

Wings moved into the runner-up position Tuesday night by trouncing Rangers 4-1 at Detroit in the only game but tonight they may be back in third.

Rangers entertain Boston Bruins while Montreal Canadiens, who clinched the NHL title during last weekend, visit Toronto Maple Leafs.

A Ranger win would push New York into second place. If this coupled with a Toronto victory another tangle in the standings would be slightly eased. Bruins and Leafs are waging a tight duel for the fourth and last playoff berth with Leafs holding a slim two-point lead over fifth-place Boston.

WINGS' FIFTH STRAIGHT

Until the jam at second and fourth place is straightened out, opponents in the Stanley Cup playoffs will not be known. The first-place team takes on the team ending in third while the second and fourth position teams battle in the best-of-seven semi-finals.

Wings' victory was their fifth straight over Rangers in seven games at Detroit this season. Detroit has failed to win any of six contests at New York.

Lorne Ferguson paced Wings with two goals. The Detroiters scored once in each of the first two periods and ran up the score to 4-0 before Danny Lewicki robbed Detroit netminder Glen Hall of a shutout with little more than two minutes left in the game.

Norm Ullman and Marty Pavelich were the other Detroit marksmen.

Wings Protest New York Linesmen

DETROIT (CP)—President Bruce Norris of Detroit Red Wings has lodged a complaint with the National Hockey League against linesmen selected for the Wings' New York games.

Norris has protested to NHL president Clarence Campbell that New Yorkers have been used as linesmen at all the New York matches. Wings' officials say two goals scored by New York Rangers in their 3-2 win Sunday were result of off-side plays.

Strath Bid Rejected Or, Who Wants Willie?

Victoria's last hope of a Coast Soccer League franchise was crushed beneath the heels of four mainland teams Tuesday night in Vancouver.

The four teams, New Westminster Royals, North Shore, St. Andrews and Vancouver Halecoes, voted to reject Victoria's bid for a franchise on the grounds that Strathconas had been tardy in filing their $1,500 application fee.

Strathcona president Jim Lackie said this morning he planned to begin investigating the possibilities of a Vancouver Island summer league.

Lackie attended last night's Vancouver meeting with soccer booster George Eade, who had offered to put up half of the $1,500 entry fee. They presented their certified cheque to the meeting but it was not accepted.

"Our trip was a waste of time," Lackie said on his return to the city this morning.

"They just don't want us and that's that. We gave them our cheque and George Eade told the meeting why he, as the donor of the largest part of the money, had requested it be withheld until we could be assured of our position.

"Eade told them no Victoria club could afford to operate in such a league unless there was a pool of all gates and travelling guarantees or else a home-and-home gate arrangement.

LEGITIMATE COMPLAINT

"Jock Hendry (league secretary-manager) told us we had a legitimate complaint, but no one would discuss a constructive remedy for the situation. They asked us to leave the room and 45 minutes later they told us we had been voted out for not posting our cheque in time.

"These people are hanging out their shingle the wrong way. They are more interested in making money than in raising the calibre of soccer or else they wouldn't have put the price so out of reach to the teams."

Lackie added, wryly, "After the meeting, the New Westminster delegate had the gall to ask me what Willie Hamilton (Strathcona playing coach) does for a living. I guess they figure with us out of a league they can start going after our players."

BERLYN HODGES

Top pitcher, percentage-wise, in the Northwest Baseball League last season. Berlyn Hodges this week signed a contract with Portland Beavers of the Coast League. Hodges, a trainer for Victoria Cougars during the winter season, will report to the Beaver camp at Glendale, Calif., March 5.

Smokies Take Two-Game Lead

TRAIL (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters jumped to a 2-0 lead in their Western International Hockey League semifinals series here Tuesday night by defeating Nelson Maple Leafs 5-1.

The Smokies had a commanding 3-0 lead after the second period. Centre Mike Shabaga, Yogi Kraiger and Gerry Penner began the scoring for Trail.

Norm Lenardon added another three-quarters of the way through the final before Ron Koehle slipped in Nelson's only goal. Art Hamilton added another insurance point for Trail 20 seconds before time.

BIG DAY FOR STEVE

MIAMI, Fla. (BUP) — Steve Brooks accounted for four of the nine victories at Hialeah Park Tuesday. He scored on Diavolezza ($7.00) in the first, Olympia Gal ($6.80) in the fifth, Mr. Patrick ($10.20) in the feature, and Sam Brook ($7.10) in the ninth.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Bob Satterfield, 187¼, Chicago, and Harold Carter, 194, Newark, N.J., drew (10).

Hucul Sets New WHL Goal Mark

Durham's Record Falls To Stamp Defenceman

Calgary 5, Brandon 4

BRANDON (CP) — Calgary Stampeders edged Brandon Regals, 5-4, Tuesday night, to snap a 13-game road losing streak. A crowd of 2,300 saw the Western Hockey League game which was ragged apart from the final minute when Brandon pulled goalie Lucien Dechene in an effort to tie the count.

Defenceman Fred Hucul paced the Calgary attack and set a WHL record for goals scored by a defenceman with two counters to boost his total to 21. The previous record set last year by Victoria's Pete Durham was 19. Hucul also picked up an assist.

Norm Johnson, Jim Hay, Elliott Chorley and Ray Manson scored for the Regals.

McFadden produced the winning counters when he bagged a pair just 29 seconds apart near the midway mark of the period. Regals threatened in the dying minutes when Manson scored from Chorley and Bill Kyle at 18:31 but their efforts for the equalizer failed. Regals outshot Stamps 34-26.

Native Sons Quit League

The Duncan Native Sons soccer team of the Victoria and District Football Association's second division, has dropped out of the division as a result of difficulties in fielding enough players for a team.

Withdrawal of the Duncan team leaves the second division with seven teams and has forced revision of the standings. However, the current standings of the teams were not changed by the revision.

Australians Begin Olympic Pantry Raid

ROME (BUP) — Australian Olympic hosts started the biggest pantry raid in history today.

The target wasn't food. It was the gents in the tall white hats who prepare it.

Europe has plenty of good cooks, as any tourist knows. Australia has a job for almost anyone who can boil water.

Masterminding the attack on European kitchens is Thomas Carlyon, a leading Melbourne hotel man who is representing the Australian Olympic committee.

Carlyon flew here to start rounding up 120 to 140 European chefs to help out in Melbourne during the Olympic games, and make sure visiting athletes can get everything from Dutch runderlappen to to Spanish arroz con pollo.

Carlyon plans to sign up about 15 Italian cooks and then fly on to other European capitals, grabbing up Dutchmen, Germans, Danes and others as he goes.

Carlyon ducked a question of how good the food is in Australia but admitted that some Australian chefs just don't qualitfy.

"If we had some good American hotels and a lot of continental cooks, we'd get lots of tourists," he said. "We've got a wonderful country and fine transportation."

Carlyon said Russian athletes in Melbourne would be able to eat yawlokami just as at home and the Chinese would have savory prawn fritters.

But he admitted he hadn't studied the question of how Communists would like food prepared by their non-Communist countrymen.

"It's a friendly gathering," he said. "I don't foresee any trouble."

Paul Makes Comeback —But Not as Player

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Meger, the gritty little hockey player who underwent four brain operations, had alarming lapses of memory and suffered agonizing body pains, has made an amazing health comeback. But his playing days are over.

"If I'm not 100 per cent, then I'm the next thing to it," said the five-foot-seven 160-pounder who until 15 months ago, played a bang-up game on left wing for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Paul looks fit, too. Mentally he is as alert and sharp as ever almost unbelievable in a man who had an egg-size piece of brain removed.

INJURED IN 1954

It has been a long, tough pull for Meger since that night in the Boston Garden—Nov. 7, 1954—when Canadiens met the Bruins. Meger tumbled to the ice and his skull was accidentally pierced by the skate of Leo Labine, a close friend. Both had played junior hockey with the Barrie, Ont., Flyers.

Meger, who is 27, makes his home in Barrie, where his wife's family lives, and comes to Montreal periodically for medical examinations. Even the doctors are amazed at the progress he has made. It's no secret that for a while Meger's chances were slim.

During his most recent Montreal visit Meger saw Canadiens wallop the Bruins. It was the third NHL game he had seen since the accident.

Early this season, while still undergoing hospital treatment, he saw a game in Montreal. "But I felt depressed—wanted to be out there playing—and I left after the second period."

Later Paul saw the Hawks play Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto. He didn't enjoy it. He still had the feeling of wanting to be on the ice.

QUICK CHANGE

"Then came this game between the Bruins and Canadiens. For half the game it was still the same old thing. I was itching to get out there.

"Then I told myself: 'Look here, Paul, you're not going to play any more. What are you going to do about it?'

"Right then and there everything changed. I was no longer a player. I was suddenly a cheering, yelling spectator. And boy, did I get a bang out of it!"

TO COACH AMALGAMATED TEAM

Jake Double-Barrelled Threat

Jake Proctor, who has always had his gunsights levelled on the Victoria Shamrocks, will have more ammunition this year.

Proctor, one of the Intercity Lacrosse League's most bombastic citizens, Tuesday was appointed coach of the newly-amalgamated Indians-Pilseners' club, which will be the lone Vancouver entry in the four-team league this season.

Coach of the Mount Pleasant Indians last year, Proctor won the new post over four other candidates who were nominated by players of the merged teams.

On accepting the appointment, Proctor said, "With the best players from last year's two clubs, I'm certain we'll have a club able to beat Victoria and Nanaimo.

A New Westminster fireman, Proctor has been in and out of senior lacrosse for 15 years as a player and coach.

He began his playing career with Adanacs in 1941 and entered the navy when the team joined the armed services in a body. On getting out of the navy, Proctor hooked up with New Westminster Salmonbellies for the last 12 games of the 1945 season, but was back with Adanacs the following season.

He then played with New Westminster Commandos and Salmonacs and, after a short retirement, prompted by his love for golf, was coaxed back into service as playing coach of the PNE Indians in 1954.

Proctor's very presence has always made Indians a drawing card in Victoria and he consistently responded by sneering at local fans, insulting the Rock team, and a victory over Victoria was always worth two over any other team in personal satisfaction to Jake the Snake, as Victoria fans called him.

How it will be this year remains to be seen because Proctor turned out to be one of the big heroes in last year's Canadian championship victory by Victoria. Shamrocks picked up Proctor as a replacement for Bob Monaghan during the Mann Cup finals and he was a tower of defensive strength during the series.

Proctor has always been an exponent of slow-breaking lacrosse and ball-control in the face of a growing tendency towards the wide-open, offence-comes-first game.

WHAT'S THE SCORE?
BY Denny Boyd

This thing had been preying on our mind for a long time.

It was this situation wherein the eastern hockey writers are building Lou Fontinato up into a minor god of some kind, just because he can belt more people further more often than anyone else in organized hockey.

It had irked us that, while guys like Andy Hebenton and Larry Popein and Harry Howell plodded along doing their jobs with unspectacular efficiency, Fontinato was being hailed as "the hottest thing on ice since Baked Alaska."

On Tuesday night, after due deliberation, we decided to bay to the moon about the lost sense of proportions, where a spirited but unskilled laborer like Lou is being accorded the respect reserved for a potentate.

We were going to write this column, see, and give it lots of the old zip and socko like the guys on city side do when they're writing about those fellers in the Big House down on Parliament Row.

The wife had assembled some notes to make the column come easier and the baby daughter was over visiting Granny and Gramps so everything seemed Jake.

We'd barely got started when the college-type sister-in-law slipped daintily into the house like an avalanche. We call her Trish, which is short for Tricia, which is short for Patricia, sort of. She'd come down to cut the wife's hair.

New York Rangers' Lou Fontinato is an unorthodox, uninhibited defenceman who appears certain to break all penalty records known to professional hockey. He's in

The phone rings and this guy asks, "is Pat there?"

We called her to the phone and she jumped up in the air and clamped both hands over her mouth and asked, "Is it HIM?".

We asked her how the whizz-bang we were supposed to know who it was and got back to Lou.

Early this season, Fontinato had it out with Montreal's fiery Rocket Richard and cleaned Richard's clock. More recently, he set

Trish, all a-trembly, says, "Would you mind not typing so loud? I can hardly hear what Dick is saying."

Well, by Jing, that tore it. We slammed the cover on the battered typing machine in high dugeon, mostly because we didn't know how to affect low dugeon and strode off while Trish said in a soothing voice, "It's alright Dick, he was just writing about some hockey player or something like that."

There was more syrupy talk about pink sweaters and who's going baby-sitting and who is wearing whose skate-key these days. But finally, after almost enough time for Fontinato to qualify for the Oldtimers' Game, we were allowed to resume our work.

Is there a race of hockey fans being born to whom a rough-house player like Fontinato epitomizes all that is marvelous about hockey, in preference to the hard-working player who

"Den," asked the wife, "Do you think this is short enough or should she take some more off."

Trembling with contained rage, we said, "Why sure, honey, that just looks wonderful. Wonderful."

Outside, the two dogs, Boozer and Magoo, were howling through a ribald version of I've got those Doggy-Woggy Blues at the tops of their voices.

Trish was gushing something fierce about this guy and the wife was imploring her to keep her mind on business and watch where she was jabbing those cotton-pickin' scissors.

And Fontinato? Listen, he can get all the penalties he wants. We don't want any part of him. By 11 last night, we were sorry we ever heard of the guy.

FORMER BRIER CHAMPION
Experience Favors Billy Walsh Rink

WINNIPEG (CP) — Billy Walsh, a scholarly-looking skip, four years ago won the Canadian curling championship for Manitoba with 10 straight victories. It was his first crack at the big time.

Now with four more years of experience, Walsh of Winnipeg's Fort Rouge Club represents Manitoba in the Canadian curling championships at Moncton March 5-9. Walsh, 39, still has two members of his championship 1952 rink with him—third Allan Langlois, 40, and lead Andy McWilliams, 38, who played second then. The newcomer to the rink but no stranger to the Walsh type of draw play is Thomas Cyril White, 41 — better known as Cy. White replaces Johnny Watson, lead on the 1952 squad.

Veteran observers around Winnipeg believe this year's rink is even better balanced than Walsh's former group, with White at second giving strength to the front end.

All four got their start in the late 1920s as juniors at the Fort Rouge Club in South Winnipeg. Walsh was the first member of the club to win the provincial title. He still is the only one. The bespectacled skipper is a civil servant in the controller-general's office. His main interests outside of the roarin' game are his wife, Peggy, and son, Billy, 7. Third-man Langlois also is in the civil service with the department of national defence. Considered one of the best vice-skips in the city, Allan has been with Walsh since 1946—shortly after discharge from the army.

White, married with three children, is in the railway mail service at the post office. Also a member of the railway mail clerks' league, he has played in more than 60 games so far this season.

Lead McWilliams is the only bachelor on the rink and spends most of his spare time at the club. An ardent golfer in the summer, he shoots in the 70s consistently but stays away from the competitive field.

Killer Wins Again —While on His Back

The clowning Bridgeport featherweight dropped to his hands and knees in the first round to escape a wild punch by Walter Lonski of Hartford.

Then, while Logan was still down, Lonski wound up again, connected with him square on the jaw and flattened him.

Referee Billy Taylor disqualified Lonski and awarded the bout to Logan—who didn't find out about it until 10 minutes later.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver mounties of the Pacific Coast Baseball League have signed their first Canadian player. He is catcher Edward Garay, 24-year-old native of Merritt, B.C., who caught for the Lewiston Broncs in 1953-54.

ALBERNI CAGER HONORED

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP)—Bill Andrews, captain of the Alberni district high school Chieftains, is the first recipient of the John Groholski memorial trophy.

The trophy was donated by Bud Howard of Seattle and will be awarded annually to a young basketball player of the Albernis for outstanding sportsmanship and team work. It was given in memory of John Groholski, a member of the 1955 Canadian champion Alberni Athletics who was killed last June in a highway accident.

Satterfield, Carter Draw

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Bob Satterfield, 187¼, of Chicago, and Harold Carter, 194, of Newark, N.J., waged a blistering 10-round draw Tuesday night in the Auditorium before a crowd of 2,895.

It was a vicious fight all the way and a tremendous crowd-pleaser. Twice Satterfield had Carter on the verge of a knockout but couldn't put him away. Carter appeared in superb condition.

At the end of the battle, Satterfield bore no visible marks but Carter suffered a deep gash on the outside of his lower lip and another on the inside.

Cadets Renew Hockey Feud

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Cadets of the United States Military Academy and the Royal Military College meet here March 10 in the 25th renewal of a hockey rivalry that began in 1923.

The game, highlight of an annual exchange visit between the two military schools, is one of the oldest international sports events between representatives of two friendly neighboring countries.

USMA, which lost 3-2 to the Canadian cadets in last year's game at West Point, N.Y., will invade Kingston's Jock Harty arena looking for its seventh win in the series.

RMC has won 17 times and the schools have tied once — a 4-4 split in 1934.

What's This? Sox Star Praising Yankee Star!

By JACK HAND

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—After all the fussing and feuding between Chicago White Sox and New York Yankees last season, it's surprising to hear a Sox player handing a compliment to a Yankee.

But that's what Jim Rivera did when he singled out Hank Bauer of New York as the enemy outfielder with the best throwing arm in the American Baseball League.

What authority does Rivera have for rating arms? Well, he led the league's outfielders in assists last season and is acknowledged to be one of the best and most daring base runners. He led the league with 25 stolen bases.

Rivera lists the best arms like this:

1. Hank Bauer, New York.
2. Al Kaline, Detroit.
3. Mickey Mantle, New York.

"After the first three, I'd put Jim Piersall and Jackie Jensen of Boston and Al Smith of Cleveland," he said. "Of course, that doesn't count Minnie Minoso. He's one of the very best but he's on my side. I don't have to run against him."

Naturally, Rivera didn't rate himself. He should have, for only one other outfielder in the majors topped his total of 22 assists in 1955. That was Willie Mays of New York Giants with 23.

Jungle Jim, as the boys call him, cut loose this winter in Mexico where he played with Bobby Avila's Mexico City Reds, pennant winners in the Mexican Vera Cruz league. He set a batting record with a .443 average and stole 29 bases. He stole home seven times

The league knows Rivera as a streak hitter. Last August he raked the pitchers at a .337 clip for 30 games, yet finished the season with a .264 average, 22 points below his 1954 figure.

Rivera takes deep pride in the stolen base title.

"If you know you can't lead in average or home runs, it's nice to know you can be first in one department," he said. "I get a kick out of getting on base, stealing second and then coming home when some good hitter like George Kell singles."

Snooker Standings

Only two points separate the first three teams in the Interclub Snooker League standings. Pro Pats are first with 126 points, followed by Tillicums, 125; Elks, 124; Britannia, 114; Eagles, 81; ANAF, 78.

YOUTH TAKING INTEREST
Curling Becoming Spectator Sport

CALGARY (CP)—Walt Gully, who handles all the major bonspiels in Alberta and British Columbia, thinks curling is getting to be more and more a spectator sport.

"So much so that they will have to change the design of all curling rinks in order to make room for the people who just come to watch," Gully said in an interview.

Gully, a former baseball first baseman from Winnipeg, said another reason for curling's growth in popularity is the interest youngsters have shown in recent years.

RIVAL FOR HOCKEY

"It's a wonderful sport for the kids," said Gully, who played in the late '40s for Calgary in the now-defunct Big Four Baseball League.

"The cost is negligible and it's easier to push-curling in the schools than hockey."

Gully sees the time coming when rinks will be formed in high school and remain intact after graduation.

"I would say the average age of top curlers will drop to where your best rinks will be just under 30. I would be willing to bet the average of rinks in the Dominion championships this year is between 40 and 45 years of age."

BUSY AT BONSPIELS

Gully is the draw secretary at all the major 'spiels in Alberta and British Columbia. His chief duty is to keep the bonspiel rolling, tell the teams where they are curling and work it so that all events most bonspiels have 44 to 45 competitions—are completed as close together as possible.

His experience began in 1941 when Gully became a member of the draw committee for the famous Winnipeg bonspiel. After serving an apprenticeship for two years, Gully became head man at the Winnipeg event and since then his reputation as draw secretary has grown.

Gully handled both the Calgary and Winnipeg 'spiels until 1953, when demand for his services in Alberta prevented him from going back to Manitoba.

Baldwin's Brier Rink Boasts Fine Record

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Pleasant-mannered Matt Baldwin, who has an eye for a bull's-eye on ice, will mastermind Alberta's representatives in the Canadian curling championships for a second time.

The 29-year-old Baldwin, a young veteran of the game and a master at knockout curling, skipped his teammates through an undefeated double-knockout competition here to win the provincial title over three other divisional finalists.

At Moncton, N.B., March 5-9, the Edmonton skip will attempt to bring home his second Dominion championship in three years. He won the crown in 1954 with an entirely different crew when the finals were held in Edmonton.

CURLER 15 YEARS

Baldwin is a partner in an oil-well servicing firm here and his curling experience goes back 15 years. His victories have been almost countless.

His present rink, with Gordon Haynes at third, Art Kleinmeyer at second and Bill Henning at lead, has built up an enviable record since it first played as a complete unit a year ago.

In the 1955 Edmonton city bonspiel, the four hooked up to run through the competition undefeated. That was their only competition together until this season when they rejoined forces.

This season, Baldwin and his current teammates won 29 straight before being beaten by Glen Gray, a teammate with Baldwin's championship rink in 1954. Gray beat Baldwin again this year, but Baldwin evened matters with two straight victories over Gray in the provincial playoffs.

Baldwin and Henning, both 29, are the youngest members of the rink. Henning is a practising lawyer and is the only single member. Haynes is 37 and works for Canadian Pacific Express.

Kleinmeyer, at 39 the oldest man on the rink, is also the only out-of-towner. He lives at Devon, about 25 miles southwest of Edmonton, where he is a surface and claims agent for Imperial Oil Ltd.

As a whole, the rink claims 67 years of experience, Haynes having the greater amount with 26 years behind him. He has been a club member for 22 years, has played in four provincial finals and in 1950 threw second stone for Cliff Manahan of Edmonton in the Canadian championships.

He prefers either knockout or draw competition. On the basis of past performance he is an expert at both.

Kleinmeyer, with 16 years' experience, and Henning, with 10 years, will play in their first Canadian championships at Moncton.

"I prefer the knockout style," says Baldwin. "Keep the house empty so the opposition can't count more than one when they have last rock, then go for a big end when you have last rock."

Rookie Pitcher Eats Again

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — It didn't figure when Washington Senators discovered no meal checks for tasty roast beef dinners were being signed by their rookie hurler, Garland Shifflett.

So, club secretary Howie Fox did a little investigating as to what was what with the 20-year-old Elkton, Va., youngster whose fast ball has brought a gleam into manager Charlie Dressen's eye.

The Senators are domiciled at a ritz hotel in nearby Winter Park where jackets are a must after 5 p.m. and in the dining room at all times. The food around the clock is superb, but no Shifflett.

Fox quickly found the youngster, who had an 11-5 record and a 1.95 earned run average with Erie, Pa., last year, was eating in restaurants and lunch rooms with hot-dogs part of his bill of fare.

The reason, Fox found: Shifflett's wardrobe was minus a coat. He brought to training camp only a pair of dungarees and a pair of trousers and he was embarrassed to broach his troubles to the club.

What happened to the $4,000 Shifflett got for signing with the Senators last summer? Fox found the youngster had spent it helping to buy a better home for his mother and father.

So, Fox took him shopping. Now Garland is sporting a suit, a sport coat, slacks, shirts, ties, socks—the works.

DYNAMO ANSWER TO BE KNOWN SOON

WINNIPEG (CP)—Moscow Dynamos are expected to reply "within a few days" to an invitation by the Football Association of Canada to tour Canada this summer.

George Anderson, association secretary, said Tuesday night he is still waiting word on whether the Russian team will agree to the tour. The association suggested tentative dates against an all-star team in Toronto Aug. 4, a second game in Montreal and a third in Vancouver against B.C. all-stars Aug. 11.

'GRACELESS BOORS'

Cricketers Scolded For Kidnapping Ump

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's touring cricketers are getting a vigorous scolding in London newspapers following the "kidnapping" of a Pakistani umpire by a number of team members at Peshawar Sunday.

Eight players, reported in disagreement with some of Idris Beg's decisions during the current series of unofficial test matches between the two countries, donned handkerchief masks and seized the umpire, taking him to their hotel room, British newspapers said.

Correspondents said Beg told them the cricketers "gagged me, twisted my arm and held me down" and later let him go after dousing him with water. The reporters said Beg was wearing his arm in a sling as a result of the incident.

Team manager Geoffrey Howard has since apologized to the umpire.

The Daily Herald says of the incident: "Such behavior, particularly toward an umpire whose decisions have not met with the approval of the Englishmen, will need a great deal of explaining."

The Daily Mirror correspondent calls the incident "idiotic, oafish and uncouth." The players involved, he adds, are at best "a bunch of graceless boors" and at worst "a pack of bad losers and bullies."

Vancouver Makes Pitch For Grey Cup Classic

TORONTO (CP)—Vancouver will go after the Grey Cup football game again this year but its big pitch will be for the 1958 classic.

The western city will bid against Toronto for the Nov. 24 event when Canadian Rugby Union holds its annual meeting here this weekend.

Although details of Vancouver's Grey Cup brief are hush-hush, it was learned Tuesday night the city wants the 1958 game as a grand finale to British Columbia centennial celebrations.

Bill Clancey, a director of British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union and the first out-of-town arrival here, said:

"We don't feel the west should be alternated each year. We would like it this year unless the east comes up with a good proposition. But we're really going after the 1958 game."

GOVERNMENT BACKING

The Grey Cup site is one of several problems to be settled at the meeting, which starts on Saturday morning. However, there will be official meetings before then.

The newly-organized Canadian Football Council meets in camera Thursday. In the evening CRU executives will go into session. They will have another closed meeting Friday.

Clancey said Vancouver's request for the 1958 game has the backing of the British Columbia government.

"Premier Bennett and other government officials want it then," he said. "It would be a great windup to the centennial celebrations."

Clancey barged into Toronto with a "bagful of tricks and gimmicks." He was one of the men responsible for talking the CRU into scheduling the 1955 game at Vancouver, the first time the east-west final was played west of Ontario.

REJOINS STAMPS

Panchos Hold Big Net Lead

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Pancho Segura and Pancho Gonzales maintained their hefty lead over Rex Hartwig and Tony Trabert Tuesday night in singles competition.

Segura now holds a 34-8-2 record over Hartwig in the competition on Jack Kramer's pro tennis tour. Segura defeated the Australian 9-7, 6-3, 6-3 setback to put Gonzales ahead in the series 36-11.

PM Warns New Tax Talks Won't Change Ottawa Plan

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Several provinces have made new proposals to the federal government for a more favorable fiscal deal, but Prime Minister St. Laurent indicated Tuesday a March 9 tax conference will not budge his government from its basic tax-split offer.

The Prime Minister announced the conference of federal-provincial heads in the Commons and later told the House the government stands "exactly" by a Feb. 18 letter to premiers giving its end-of-the-line financial concessions.

That letter and Mr. St. Laurent's statement Tuesday made it clear the central government will not lay out further money to meet proposals of Ontario, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Alberta set out in letters tabled in the House with his conference announcement.

All premiers now have announced—either formally to the government here or in public statements—that they will attend the closed sessions starting Friday, March 9, a day late in the week, indicating the federal government looks for a brief meeting.

NO EXTRA MONEY

Mr. St. Laurent, in his Feb. 18 letter, indicated a chilly attitude towards the idea of Ottawa producing more federal money for the provinces. Federal officials said Tuesday that still holds.

In the Commons, the Prime Minister was asked by J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative financial critic, whether the conference indicates federal-provincial fiscal issues are still open for negotiation.

Mr. St. Laurent said the terms of his Feb. 18 letter express "exactly what is the attitude of the Canadian government at this time."

That means there could be federal concessions on relatively minor points but no retreat from the basis of the current offer of a tax-sharing setup to replace the tax rental agreements which expire March 31, 1957.

The offer involves federal equalization payments to provinces to bring the lower-income regions up to the per capita levels of Ontario and British Columbia — the two highest—in the fields of personal and corporation income tax and succession duties.

VOICE NEW DEMANDS

The Prime Minister's unchanged stand, made known almost simultaneously with the tabling of new provincial demands in the Commons, automatically knocked out a change in the fundamental basis of equalization payments sought by Premier Frost of Ontario in one of the tabled letters.

Mr. Frost asked that, instead of using the two top revenue provinces for the equalization payments base, the highest four be used. Without specifying how, he suggested this would enable Ontario to get more revenue.

The Prime Minister's statement also left no conference encouragement for the other three provinces which came up with new suggestions in Tuesday's tabled communications. These were:

Alberta: Unspecified "fundamental changes" in the federal proposals. Premier Manning telegraphed he would attend the conference but could see little value in it unless the federal government would consider such changes.

British Columbia: A greater provincial allocation of the income tax field, to enable that province to keep pace financially with its general growth.

Saskatchewan: Further discussion of resources development and the revival of Parliament's 1933 Municipalities Improvements Assistance Act under which federal loans were extended to municipalities at low interest for self-liquidating projects.

MEASURE DORMANT

This depression measure, though still on the statute books, has been in suspended animation for several years. Mr. St. Laurent said in the Commons Tuesday, in reply to a question from Stanley Knowles (CCF, — Winnipeg North Centre), that it is improbable any amendments to it will be introduced at this parliamentary session.

The CCF member had referred to a request for the act's reactivation from the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Apart from the new specific provincial suggestions made public Tuesday, the federal government also had received earlier formal criticism of its basic proposals from Premiers Flemming of New Brunswick and Hicks of Nova Scotia. These premiers, along with Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan, had called for the new federal-provincial conference.

The provincial letters and telegrams tabled Tuesday showed acceptances — in some cases not hopeful — of the federal-provincial conference invitation from all provinces except Quebec. Premier Duplessis was considering it in his last communication with the Prime Minister, but he has subsequently announced at Quebec that he will attend.

BARE MOUNTAIN TIMBER SOUGHT BY CITY FIRM

H. J. Hodgins Ltd., 625 Yates street, estimated that the sale of timber would bring a revenue of about $10,000 to the municipality.

Bare Mountain which overlooks Elk Lake is about 1,000 feet in height; higher than both Mount Douglas and Mount Tolmie. Its timber slopes includes about 50 acres. At one time Saanich planned to construct a reservoir on its summit.

Coun. Eugene Diespecker said he was under the impression that a Saanich resident had given the land to the municipality for park purposes. Coun. Leslie Passmore said he knew of no such agreement.

Ontario Premier Frosty About Province's 'Golden Goose' Role

TORONTO (BUP)—As far as Premier Leslie Frost is concerned, Ontario is the goose that laid the federal golden egg and consequently she deserves more pay.

Frost said Tuesday night he had sent a proposal to Prime Minister St. Laurent that Ontario be given more money when the federal-provincial talks resume March 9.

He told legislature members the province carried one-half of Canada's industrial and economic progress and "there should be and must be more money returned to Ontario by Ottawa if this province is to continue to carry the load."

He suggested that the average per capital tax yield of Ontario, Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia be used as a basis for equalization payments to other provinces.

The premier termed the federal proposal unfair because Ontario would pay half the taxes Ottawa colects and from which it proposes to pay out $23,000,000 in equalization payments. All provinces but Ontario would share in the money.

LEAP-YEAR DAY ADVICE

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — This being leap year, the town's leading mancatchers—Zsa Zsa and Eva Gabor — handed out free advice to women: Learn to cook, don't play hard to get, and use intellect and not sex appeal.

These free tips I wheedled out of the beautiful Hungarian blondes for the benefit of any single girls in the audience (me, too).

One point the two actresses agree on: It's okay to propose to a man this leap year—or any year.

"I proposed to all of my husbands, darling," cooed Zsa Zsa as she flitted about her Bel-Air home.

"Always tell the men. A woman has to make up a man's mind, anyway."

I ran down Eva at a CBS-TV television rehearsal and she agreed, "why wait until the man asks you? And if he says no, wear him down."

But first, they both believe, "You have to get the guy in love with you."

VERY IMPORTANT

"It's very important to be intellectual," she said. All this sex business—what a man wants is companionship—in marriage. A woman makes a terrible mistake if she uses sex to get a man. He doesn't just want to make love or see low-cut dresses. He wants a companion."

A female should also "know how to do things—such as cooking," Zsa Zsa believes.

"I can even fix the electricity in my house," she beamed. "I can carpenter. I am a handy man. The more you know, the better it is."

Both agree another mistake a girl can make is to try to make a man jealous—or to play hard to get.

"Be honest," lectured Eva. "Don't play hard to get. If I see a guy I like I tell him right out. In fact, I may do that this year and get married!

"And a man never likes a woman who yaks too much," she added. "It's also a good idea to wear perfume."

Zsa Zsa's advice: "A woman should never try to make a man jealous by flirting with other guys. Men are afraid the woman will be fickle."

Army Cadet Funds Boosted By Strathcona Trustees

More money for B.C. Army Cadet Corps in regular training and summer camps this year was made available at the annual meeting Monday of Lord Strathcona Trust B.C. committee.

The meeting, which took place here with Western Command officers and departments of education representatives, agreed to increase proficiency awards for B.C. cadets, make an award to the cadet chosen to attend the Bisley shoot in England, and raise the allotment of funds to buy awards for cadets attending trades training camps such as at Vernon, July 2 to Aug. 17.

The fund was established through the will of Canada's famous railroad builder and former Hudson's Bay Co. governor, Lord Strathcona, who died in 1914.

It is also used for marksmanship and sports awards to army cadets.

There are 44 cadet corps in B.C. with a total strength of 2,400 extending from Alert Bay to Victoria and Prince George to the Kootenays.

Chairman of the meeting was B.C. area commander, Brig. George Kitching, Vancouver, with L. R. Hind, department of education assistant deputy registrar acting as secretary. Other officers present were command cadet officer Maj. C. M. Rehill, Edmonton, and area cadet officer Capt. H. R. MacMillan, Vancouver.

Others present were deputy minister of education, Dr. H. L. Campbell, assistant deputy minister J. F. English; George Grant, representing Victoria school inspector, and Gordon Brandreth, representing Vancouver school superintendent.

FIRST ELECTIONS ORDERED IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA (Reuters)—Austria's two-party government coalition, racked by feuds, Tuesday decided to hold the country's first elections since the end of the four-power occupation last year.

Representatives of Chancellor Julius Raab's People's Party and their partners, the Socialists, broke off talks on their differences Tuesday and called for general elections May 13. The last elections were held in 1953.

Vancouver Council Moves On Sunday Sport

VANCOUVER (CP) — While Mayor Fred Hume was in Victoria making personal representations to the provincial government on the Sunday sports issue, the Vancouver City Council decided Tuesday on some action of its own.

The council approved, with one dissension, a resolution asking that one of the nine member's of the legislature for Vancouver introduce a bill in the House today asking that commercialized Sunday sports be made legal in Vancouver.

The issue was given a narrow vote of approval in December by Vancouver voters.

Said Alderman Bill Orr: "I'm sick and tired of walking around Vancouver having people tell me we're not doing a job."

Two FOR THE Show

By PHIL LEE

AA—Oscar Class
BB—Worthwhile Afternoon
A—Don't Miss
B—For a Rainy
C—To Put in Time

(BB) "FOREVER DARLING" (Royal)— Lucile Ball and Desi Arnaz are usually fun whether seen on TV's small screen in the I Love Lucy series or on wide screen motion pictures like "The Long, Long Trailer."

However, in the opinion of this column, their latest movie venture, "Forever Darling," isn't quite up to snuff.

Possibly this is because there is a small "sermon" lurking beneath the plot and one doesn't expect sermons from Lucy and Desi. One only expects a gay picnic liberally supplied with ham and slapstick spread, or, in brief, what comes naturally.

ABOUT THE PLOT (AND sermon): Lucy and Desi have been married five years and things aren't going too smoothly. Lucy and her friends are from great wealth but Desi, a scientist working on an insecticide for the betterment of the human race, has the quaint idea that a man should support his wife and there are brighter things in life than shiny new Cadillacs.

Relationship grows more and more strained until one night Desi blows his top and tells Lucy's best friends exactly what he thinks of them and their way of life. (They advocate not only separate beds for man and wife but separate rooms as well.) This show of temper alienates Lucy's affection to such a degree that Desi decides to sleep on the couch in the library.

THAT NIGHT IN HER lonely bed Lucy sees a vision—a man walks into her room to announce cooly that he is her guardian angel. He looks startlingly like James Mason, whom Lucy has had a secret crush on for years. Guardian Angel Mason informs her that if she doesn't pull herself together her marriage is headed for the rocks. He also tells her that hubby Desi has a secret crush too. It is on Ava Gardner.

★ ★ ★

IN A DESPERATE ATtempt to get her marriage back on the rails, Lucy agrees to accompany Desi on a field trip during which he is to test his new insecticide. And it is here that Lucy-Desi admirers will get their best yuks. Lucy is about as indigenous to camp life as a cow at a cotillion.

Lucy fans may wonder at Miss Ball's looks, as both the cameraman and make-up man were most unkind. Somehow, somewhere they lost the broad smile and the zing, Lucy's trade marks. And because they lost them Lucy appears as a rather tired woman who would recapture her youth through sheer willpower.

Jazz Cats Invade Stratford Festival

Duke Ellington Among Headliners To Appear; Extensive Program Set

Louis Applebaum, music director for the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, said today jazz concerts, an opera, piano and song festivals will highlight the 1956 Stratford Music Festival.

The jazz men will include Wilbur de Paris, Dave Brubeck, Duke Ellington, Willie (The Lion) Smith and Canadian Cal Jackson.

Mr. Applebaum also announced a newly-formed festival orchestra of about 40 musicians will play under guest conductors Reginald Stewart and Heinz Unger. Mr. Stewart, formerly of the Toronto Conservatory, now heads the Peabody Institute of Music at Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Unger, formerly of Berlin and now living in Toronto, conducts by engagement throughout the world.

The festival chorus, directed by Elmer Iseler, teacher of music at York Memorial Collegiate in Toronto, will make its second appearance at the festival.

"This is perhaps the first time that good jazz has been thoroughly integrated into a serious music festival," Mr. Applebaum said.

"Such highlights as Schubert's 'Die Schoene Muellerin,' performed by Rudolf Serkin and baritone Martial Singher, alternating with Duke Ellington concerts, indicate the attitude we are applying to our programming this year."

The music festical will run five weeks from July 7 to Aug. 11. A total of 35 concerts will be presented.

The drama season, from June 18 to Aug. 18, will present two Shapespeare plays, "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "Henry V," directed by Michael Langham.

"The Rape of Lucretia," by Benjamin Britten, will be sung six times with the Metropolitan Opera's Jennie Tourel and Regina Resnik, Jon Vickers of Prince Albert, Sask., and five others yet to be cast.

The jass concerts will present a survey of jazz of the 20th century.

Meanwhile, it was announced by M. C. G. Meighen, national chairman of the permanent theatre fund, that $315,917 has been pledged to date in the $984,000 campaign for a new festival theatre.

Snow Breaks 74-Year Mark In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP) — The weather office said it tied a record but folks on Nova Scotia's south shore weren't impressed by statistics. They were too busy with snow shovels.

Nineteen inches fell Tuesday at Yarmouth, on the province's southernmost tip and 16 inches at Halifax. Winds reaching 25 miles an hour wrapped it up into a first-class blizzard.

It was the second storm in less than three weeks for the province and snowfall figures kept here show 43 inches in February, matching a record set in 1882.

50% Reclamation Of Prisoners Here

The John Howard Society here has been "at last 50 per cent successful" in rehabilitation work for former prisoners, the annual meeting heard Monday.

President Hugh Botterell said last year the organization handled 150 provincial cases and 32 federal cases, as well as municipal cases involving 1,478 interviews.

The society had 126 jobs to find, and was successful in finding 101 of these, 80 per cent.

"We have a wonderful group of employers who have jobs available, even after they experience our clients who do not turn out very successfully," he said.

Last year, he went on, the justice department sent the society more persons to supervise on ticket-of-leave than ever before. These are persons serving balance of sentences outside an institution.

"None of these failed or violated their condition of leave, and all are progressing satisfactorily," he said.

MORE BRANCHES

Those aided are placed in jobs all over Vancouver Island, and consideration is being given to establishing Up-Island branches of John Howard.

The president said: "We need a little more help from everybody on the financial side."

At present, grants are received from the Community Chest, federal and provincial governments.

"We want more people to know that an ex-convict can be a good citizen," he said.

At the meeting, in the Health and Welfare Centre, Mr. Botterell was re-elected president. Named first vice-president was Thomas Wellburn, and second vice-president, A. E. Jones.

DIRECTORS

Elected directors were: W. C. Angus, A. W. Tuckwell, R. John Nation, J. A. Sadler, B. C. Gillies, W. A. Pearson, R. J. Killeen, Mrs. E. E. Livesay and Lieut. Cmdr. B. C. Hamilton.

Named an honorary director was the Venerable A. E. Hendy of Nanaimo.

An address was given by UBC Professor Elmer K. Nelson, criminologist, on aspects of the rehabilitation program in the province.

St. Aidan's-Chinese Play Winner in Church Festival

St. Aidan's-Chinese presentation of a dramatic play in the YPU United Church religious drama festival, was declared the winner Monday night by Mrs. Elizabeth Mayne, adjudicator.

This was a combined effort and on the whole something quite good was achieved, Mrs. Mayne commented.

The play, "He Passed Through Samaria" is by L. Bullock-Webster, formerly of Victoria, and the man chiefly responsible for starting the many-drama festivals all over this province.

Mrs. Mayne felt the cast had difficulty with the pronounced transition towards the end, from evil influence to good. However, there was some very nice characterization, particularly in the case of Nasor the cobbler, played by Lorne Clerihue.

MEMORY LAPSES

The set was good. The pace, which began well, suffered later from memory lapses and slow cues. Mrs. J. L. Clerihue was the director. Others in the cast were Charlie Ennals, who was commended for having a fine voice and well-realized characterization, Betty Clarke and Ireta Thorpe.

"Night on the Hill" appeared to the adjudicator as too difficult a play for the age group presenting it—Fairfield United YPU. Nevertheless it was a good play offering terrific possibilities.

High praise was given Barbara Oliphant who took the part of Mary Magdalene. Mrs. Mayne complimented her on her serene bearing which was "just right."

Larry Morrical and Mary Meichenbauer also received praise for what they had achieved in the face of grave difficulty.

Saanich Workers Get Ultimatum On Wage Offer

Saanich Council Monday delivered a 10-day ultimatum to its municipal employees to accept a blanket 2½ per cent wage boost for 1956 and a 1½ per cent for 1957.

Council threatened to scrap its proposed wage formula and benefits for its workers if the Saanich Municipal Employees' Association did not accept its wage offer by 5 p.m. March 9.

Council's action followed receipt of a letter from the union rejecting the council's wage offer and requesting instead a 4 per cent wage boost for 1956 and a 3 per cent for 1957.

The union originally asked for blanket 10 per cent wage increase.

Reeve Arthur Ash said he was surprised at the union turning down the council's wage offer.

"I think we have been most fair," he said. "We are offering them a higher wage increase than the city gave to its employees."

(The city gave its "inside staff a 1.92 per cent wage increase, averaging $4 per month. Saanich council's wage offer would amount to about $6 a month for each employee).

Coun. Ronald Grant moved that the union be given a deadline of 10 days to accept the offer. "If they don't then we will withdraw our offer in total," he said, "and take whatever action we think appropriate."

Council also give the fire fighters union 10 days to accept a similar wage offer. The firemen have asked for a 9 per cent wage increase.

BETWEEN TIMES

By

MONTE ROBERTS

I have been asked to tell all I know about March.

Although the request does not make it clear, I presume the March referred to is the month, not the physical action of putting one's left foot forward, which earned a fortune for John Philip Sousa when he provided the necessary oom-pah-PAH's for same.

So we will predicate our discourse on the premise that March, the 31-day wonder of the year, is our subject.

Well, then, all I know about March is not very much, but it could come in handy sometime.

March used to be the first month in the year. This, however, was changed in 1752, the year in which Benjamin Franklin flew a kite, discovered electricity, and so shocked Great Britain and the American Colonies that they unanimously dropped 11 days after Sept. 2, making the next day Sept. 14.

This was just about the last unanimous action by Great Britain and the American Colonies for a long time, and certainly one of the most confusing.

(I am NOT making this up, it's in the book.)

Well, after March stopped being the first month in the year, it had to settle for the consolation of being the first unabbreviated month of the year, and even now tends to look down its fully-spelled nose at Jan. and Feb.

There is a well-known but not very well-proven theory that March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb. A better-established theory is that Old Vic's Uncle Zeke comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamp.

March was named after Mars, the god of war, and actually would have been spelt "Mars" to this day, except for the invention of the lintoype machine and the typographical error.

March comes before April, whose showers bring May flowers. It is not known what March showers bring, unless it is sniffles.

Very few poems have been written about March, mainly because the rhymes for March consist entirely of arch, larch, parch, and starch, and who wants to write a poem about carrying a larch under an arch in March, even with a bucket of starch waiting on the back parch?

Even Shakespeare, who wrote poems about everything up to and including the kitchen sink, had very little to say about March. In fact, his best effort was to refer to "daffodils that comes before the swallow dares, and take the winds of March with beauty."

I think you will agree this is a little vague, even by Shakespearian standards.

March does have one important function. Without March, we would not be able to call people mad as March hares.

And the way people are these days, it is essential to have March hares to call people as mad as.

That is all I know about March, except it is the month in which the winds blow but in Victoria who can tell the difference?

Road Engineer Says Sommers Tried Coercion

'Sign, or Else' Threat, Jamieson Tells Committee

A professional engineer hired as government inspector on the controversial Cassiar-Stewart road testified today former mines minister R. E. Sommers had attempted to "coerce" him into signing a document.

E. A. Jamieson, who is also Sergeant-at-Arms of the B.C. Legislature, said he returned from the project last fall after five weeks and was asked to sign a claim for $47,000 by the contractors, Wade and Wells Ltd. of Trail.

The contractors had not submitted vouchers to cover the claim and he refused to sign them, Mr. Jamieson said.

Mr. Jamieson said he was told by deputy minister Dr. J. F. Walker that the minister had said he should sign the claim "or else."

The engineer was testifying before the legislative committee on mining and railways investigating allegations of irregularities in construction of the northern mining assistance road.

LAST FALL

Mr. Jamieson read a report at the hearing charging incompetency by the contractors. The report was drawn up last fall after his appointment as inspector on the road between Sept. 7 and Oct. 18 of last year.

He also stated under questioning he had told someone that he intended to "break" Mr. Sommers over the Cassiar-Stewart road.

Mr. Jamieson testified that when he refused to sign the claim form of the contractors, the vouchers were produced. He had been told that they were left up at the road-building camp, he said.

Mr. Sommers made a statement before the committee that Mr. Jamieson was basing this part of his testimony on hearsay evidence. The ex-minister said his orders were that the contractors should not be paid until the claim was signed by the supervisor or an affidavit taken.

He had told the deputy minister that the time slip vouchers must be brought to Victoria immediately "even if someone has to go in on snowshoes to get them."

NOT SATISFIED

The minister said he wasn't satisfied with the way the camp had been wound up.

Under further questioning by Mr. Laing, Mr. Jamieson said that in his opinion the government had received only "50 per cent value" for the $870,000 it has spent on the road to date.

"Have you made a statement to anyone that you intended to break the minister of Mines?"

Jamieson: "Yes, and I had good reasons for it."

Mr. Jamieson said he showed his report to CCF Leader Arnold Webster and Liberal Leader Arthur Laing just before Christmas.

"What was your purpose," Mr. Peterson asked.

"Because as an engineer I take an oath binding myself to expose anything I find and I felt this was of public interest."

Mr. Jamieson denied a suggestion by Mr Peterson that he was "prejudiced" against the government when he accepted the job.

In his report the engineer stated that the road was a major operation and complete engineering data should have been gathered before work started.

"The work called for the best roadbuilders you could find with experience in the north," he said.

Mr. Jamieson said there was no organization of the work by the contractors. There was no systematic inspection of equipment and wastage of food was "appalling."

Three Stores Planned Here By Supermarket

Project to Cost $1.5 Million

Canada's largest chain grocery, Dominion Stores Ltd., plans to invade the Victoria area with three major stores at a possible total outlay of $1,500,000, it was learned today.

Besides the Burnside-Douglas site approved for sale by Victoria city council Tuesday, it is understood negotiations are proceeding for building sites near Fort and Fern and in the Hillside-Shelbourne area.

Two other new stores are being considered in the Nanaimo area and possibly three more in Vancouver where the first new Dominion Store in western Canada is now under construction.

The firm took control of the Calgary-Lethbridge Town and Country Chain last October.

In Victoria, realtors Pemberton, Holmes Ltd. are involved in negotiations locally, and an official statement on the gigantic expansion plan is expected to be issued shortly.

J. Scott Feggans, director of advertising and public relations for the firm told the Times from Toronto that studies of food shopping needs are being conducted by the firm in every major Canadian city.

Mayor Percy Scurrah told council recently the store proposed for the Burnside area would cost $500,000.

ABRAHAM DRIEDGER

Mennonite Lobbies for Doukhobors

A one-man lobby to right what he considers injustices against Doukhobors was undertaken here today by Abraham Driedger, former Saskatchewan businessman and Mennonite now living in Vancouver.

He said his chief demands of the government would be the return of children taken from their parents because they were kept from public schools, and a settlement for lands confiscated in 1938.

"Taking the children from their parents was termed illegal by the 1952 report of the Doukhobor research committee of the University of B.C.," he said. "The same report says action on the lands was illegal. But the report has been shelved."

Mr. Driedger said he is helping the Doukhobors because "I've been friends with them all my life."

SAME PROMISES

He said that when the Doukhobors came to Canada they were promised exactly the same privileges as those granted the Mennonites in 1873.

"But we had ours in writing," he said. "The Doukhobors had only promises."

A fair settlement of the 1938 confiscation would amount to millions of dollars, he said.

"The Doukhobors took no relief in the hungry 30s, and went into debt to finance companies for $500,000 on assets of $5,000,000," he said. "Yet confiscation was permitted even though the government paid out millions in relief elsewhere, and other farmers' debts up to twice the value of their land were written off."

He calls himself one of a growing body of "silent objectors to Doukhobor persecution," and although not active in business, is not "retired."

"I'll call myself retired when I can't talk any more," he said.

Ex-B.C. Electric Home Service Head Dies at Home

Mrs. Margaret Ann Foulds, who retired in 1946 after 18 years as B.C. Electric home service director here, died Tuesday night at her home, 1961 Watson street.

Born in Green Castle, Ireland, she was a resident of Victoria for 45 years, and widow of Ernest C. Foulds. After her retirement she became matron of Soroptimist House in Vancouver for four years, and was a member of the B.C. Electric Retired Employees' Association.

The funeral will be held Friday at 3.15 p.m. at McCall's, and will be followed by cremation.

Roundtable Parley To Discuss Aged

A meeting of all city and district organizations concerned with improving conditions for old age pensioners will be held at city hall April 9.

Chairman of a committee on welfare of the aged, sponsored by community welfare council, Capt. D. J. Proudfoot, said it is hoped to form all agencies for the relief of the pensioner into one co-operative unit.

"We hope to get everybody together and allocate proper jobs to halt waste through overlapping of effort," he said.

Capt. Proudfoot said the program of activities would include building projects, rehabilitation, recreation and housekeeping.

Community welfare council is a member of Community Chest and includes in its members many city and district medical and health authorities as well as welfare experts.

The meeting will be widely advertised in advance and special invitations will be sent to all known organizations which would be concerned.

One of these, the Victoria Citizens' Campaign Council, has formed a committee to work on housing for pensioners.

It will investigate with Saanich authorities feasibility of a pensioners' housing scheme on which Saanich welfare administrator has been working two years, and attempt to set up a self-run housing unit for 15-20 pensioners. It hinges on conversion of a former estate.

G. E. Williams, president of Victoria Retarded Children's Association and member of the campaign council, said: "Let's have some action. We can go right up to Saanich Council and say 'What about it'?"

Second part of the committee's plan would be an adaptation of a housing project found successful in the U.S. Old mansions are bought and operated on a community basis by pensioners themselves.

W. A. Scott has offered Carberry Gardens house for this purpose, and the committee will inspect the premises with a city architect next Monday.

PARENTS WANT SCHOOLYARDS FOR CHILDREN

Police action in stopping children from playing on school playgrounds after school hours was protested Tuesday by a group of Burnside parents.

The committee asked the petitioners to present their complaint in the form of a letter to council.

As a result of the police order, parents said, the youngsters turn to play in the streets and again are chased away.

Island Power Crisis Threatens Industry

Danger signals are flying for Vancouver Island industries due to a critical shortage of water in B.C. Power Commission reservoirs.

Only a "mathematical chance" is keeping industry in business, Larry Wright, commission district manager at Nanaimo, said today.

Water supplies are less than 40 per cent of normal, he said. Heavy industry has been told of the serious situation and asked to economize.

"If the situation becomes more serious it could lead to a shutdown of industries," Mr. Wright said.

"However, it depends on a bunch of mathematical chances, such as rain, temperature, and other things." He said the long-range picture is good because of the better-than-average supply of snow in the watershed.

A commission spokesman here said the commission is utilizing auxiliary power sources and taking other steps to conserve its depleted storage in Lower Campbell lake.

The lake is the reservoir for the 168,000 h.p. John Hart generating station. Additional storage facilities are under construction but will not ease the problem until late this year, the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, power loads continue to increase rapidly, with consumption in January being 17½ per cent greater than the same period last year, he said.

BRENTWOOD SUPPLY

A 2,000-kilowatt diesel plant on a B.C. Bridge & Dredging Co. barge arrived in Nanaimo today and is moored at the Assembly Wharf feeding power into the Nanaimo distribution system.

Additional water will flow into Lower Campbell Lake as a result of dredging the outlet of Buttle Lake which has just begun. This will provide storage equal to about three days' operation of the John Hart plant. This is the same "pulling the plug" operation which was carried out last year. The dredged section will be replaced when the spring run-off starts.

Small amounts of power will be fed into the Island system by the MacMillan and Bloedel lumber mills at Port Alberni and Chemainus, B.C. Forest Products mill at Youbou and possibly from the Western Forest Industries mill at Honeymoon Bay. The RCAF station at Comox is operating its standby diesel plant, which relieves the commission's lines of providing some 500 kw of capacity.

SNOW TO HELP

A considerable amount of snow at low levels which will melt rapidly is expected to help the situation. The ground around the Campbell River watershed is satured, which means virtually all melting snow and additional precipitation will run off immediately.

The critical water period is likely to continue until well into April when the spring run-off begins. In the meantime, except for these limited auxiliary sources, the power situation on Vancouver Island is in the hands of nature, the spokesman pointed out.

He noted that the 70,000 h.p. Ladore Falls generating station now under construction will be completed late this year, and that work is progressing on the big dam below the outlet of Upper Campbell Lake, which will provide storage and 42,000 h.p. of generating capacity.

The commission has under active study installation of a thermal plant on Vancouver Island. An early decision is expected.

Saanich Allocates $1,000 for Survey On East-West Road

Saanich council has set aside $1,000 in its 1956 estimates to conduct a survey for an east-west road in the municipality, Reeve Arthur Ash announced today.

The decision followed a recommendation from Brahm Wiesman, capital regional planner, for a four-lane highway across the municipality, the reeve said.

The reeve said the Saanich Town Planning Commission felt that it was "absolutely essential" for Saanich to have a cross-road to permit the easy flow of traffic to the Trans-Canada Highway.

The extension of McKenzie Avenue is under consideration, he said.

The present proposal, the reeve said, calls for the setting aside of lands for the road to be developed in stages as the population increases.

"It is felt that if the land is not set aside now," said the reeve, "it will be impossible in the future to construct such a road as the bulk of the land will be taken up by private residences."

CJVI Drops From TV Outlet Fight

The three-way fight for Victoria's only allocated TV outlet, channel 6, became a two-way fight today as CJVI dropped out of the contest.

Blaming CBC power restrictions for the move, CJVI general manager William Guild said company officials had decided not to apply for licence when the CBC board of governors meet again in Ottawa at the end of March. Deadline for the submission of briefs is tomorrow.

This now leaves CKDA and William Rea, owner of New Westminster radio station CKNW, still in the running. Both David M. Armstrong, owner of CKDA, and Mr. Rea already have their applications in the hands of the CBC.

Five Teen-Agers, Small Boy Injured in Traffic Crashes

Four young persons went to hospital following a two-car head-on crash on Esquimalt road at Signal Hill at about 3.50 p.m.

Miss Roberta Marshall, 17, 422 Edwards, suffered a bump to her head; John Clark, 19, 822 Catherine, sore ribs, and Ronald Kaye, 19, 929 Empress, was examined for a possible neck injury.

Esquimalt police said all were riding in a car driven west on Esquimalt road by Clark. The oncoming car was driven by John T. Noble, 3480 Doncaster, who was not injured.

Damage to the vehicles was estimated at $750.

Martin Fletcher, 18, 600 Speed, received a broken right leg when a motorcycle he was riding crashed into the rear of a car parked outside 527 Burnside.

The car was owned by John Mar, of 527 Burnside.

Two-year-old John Edward Lawford, 924 Empress, was detained at Jubilee hospital overnight for observation after he was in collision with a car on Quadra near Empress at about 4.30 p.m.

Police said the car was driven south on Quadra by Gordon Hamilton, Old West Road. The lad was crossing Quadra at the time.

ASK The TIMES

Q. At the intersection of Fernwood Road and Bay Street, there is a stone arch. There was a second one across the street till recent years. When were they erected and for what purpose? A.J.F.

A. Erected about 40 years ago, they were part of a real estate development. The original plans were not carried out fully.

Q. When were the first gold coins minted in Canada? When was Canadian gold used for the first time? I.C.

A. In 1862 $10 and $20 Government of B.C. pieces were made from Cariboo gold. Finally rejected by the Imperial Government, only eight of the $20 and five of the $10 are known to be in existence now. In 1908 British sovereigns were coined in Canada, and in 1912 Canada took over the Ottawa Mint and made gold coins for herself.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

HOW WE LIVE

Be Bold—Learn to Stand On Your Own Two Feet

By E. B. (BUTCH) HISLOCK, PhBT

One thing a person must learn at an early age is to stand on his own two feet. Unless he would rather sit down.

(Q) I am only a girl, so I guess you are wondering why I am writing to a male-type Phh. T., but the fact of the matter is, I am worried. I am worried about what men think about girls, and the reason I am worried about what men think about girls is, I am only a girl. What do men think about girls?

(A) Most men think about girls not unfavorably. But you must learn to stand on your own two feet. Unless you would rather sit down. This is especially true in a bus at the rush hour when you MUST learn to stand on your own two feet, even if you would rather sit down.

(Q) I am desperately in need of help. I used to play golf in the low seventies, bowl in the high hundreds, run the table at eight ball, make eighter from Decatur the hard way, and draw successfully to an inside straight. Then I met a girl, see, and my golf, bowling, pool, dice, and poker have gone all to the, you should excuse the expression, dickens. What should I do?

(A) Marry the girl. Any fool who would draw to an inside straight deserves it. But always remember to stand on your own two feet, except when making eighter from Decatur the hard way. (Incidentally, if you know an EASY way to roll eight, let me know.)

(Q) I am a red-blooded Canadian boy, young, virile, in the best of health, and anxious to meet up with a girl who will love, honor, and obey me. The trouble is, every time I meet a girl, and I ask her on bended knees to be mine, she laughs at me. What should I do?

(A) What were you doing on bended knees? Trying to make eighter from Decatur the hard way? Stand on your own two feet.

Mr. Hislock will answer your personal questions. But don't get TOO personal.

Leap Year Casualties Many In Sports Writers' Field

By DENNY BOYD

The way things are going, we might just as well take a permanent job on these pages. There have been more athletes in this department than in the sports pages recently.

Yeah, it's Leap Year. Look at all the guys taking the leap this year.

Jackie Thompson was a good defenceman for the Victoria Shamrocks, but he was defenceless when Doreen gave him that look.

And Ronnie McLeod . . . Ronnie used to whip out on Sunday mornings for 27 holes of golf. But do you know what Ron's going to be doing on Sunday mornings from now on? He's going to be drying the breakfast dishes as fast as Sonja can wash them.

George is taking the large plunge sometime this year and Bob tears up his International Brotherhood of Bachelors card this summer. There was a time when other bachelors looked up to Bob as the very paragon of bachelorhood.

Ian is a fellow sportswriter. But, as of Saturday night, he will be doing most of his writing on the 1st and the 15th.

Ed Ash trembles violently when he contemplates the overwhelming flood of matrimony that is spreading through his Farmer Construction baseball team faster than the hives.

But Ed, other coaches and managers and other athletes might just as well face it; this is Leap Year, when the gals throw away the rule book.

To use hunting and fishing phraseology, this is open season, there is a limit of one, a licence is needed but there are no restrictions on the methods or equipment used in hunting, trapping, angling, netting or otherwise snaring. The season closes December 31.

CAPTAIN SAYS

Half Century at Sea But Would Do It Over Again

HALIFAX (CP) — Capt. F. A. Turner has been going to sea for more than half a century but he says that if he had the decision to make again "I'd go back at it again."

Capt. Turner's particular niche at sea is the tugboat, big and small, although during his career he has served on just about every other type of craft afloat.

He's an expert with a tug in docking huge liners in tricky weather, but also has had his share of deep-sea salvage and rescue jobs. So many, in fact, that he doesn't recall how many, or even the first one.

A native of Moser's River, N.S., 67-year-old Capt. Turner started to sea as a deckhand at 13 and by the time he was 19 was in command of a schooner in the coal trade along the Nova Scotia coast.

He jumped to steam-powered ships, and at the outbreak of the First World War started serving on tugboats.

He's been at it ever since, although now during the cold weather he remains ashore in a salvage company's dispatching office.

"But I've enjoyed it all," says the veteran skipper, "and I'd go back at it again if I had to do it over."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOE LOWMAN

Baritone Leonard Warren Cites the Value of Make-Up

I just must let you in on a fascinating talk with Leonard Warren, famous not only as one of the world's greatest baritones, but as one of opera's most versatile and convincing actors.

The imposing number of roles he sings proves his infinite variety, ranging from the fat, gross, jolly Falstaff, to the sad, long-faced Rigoletto, from the simple-seeming Tonie in Pagliacci to the sinister Scarpia of Tosca.

"How do you do it," I asked.

Mr. Warren laughed and said, "You should be the last to ask that because a great deal of it is due to make-up."

Leonard Warren continued, "This works two ways, visually and psychologically; first its effect on the performer and then on the audience. When I put white powder in my hair, I not only look older to myself in the mirror and to the audience in the theatre but it is easier for me to feel like an older man.

"When I put on a beard I also put on the mannerisms of a man with a beard. Depending on the script, it may be that the beard evokes greater dignity, greater wickedness or greater wisdom. Whatever is called for in projecting the part, the beard makes it easier to do."

This great artist went on to say that of course any good characterization needs much more than make-up, that the actor must brood about the character until he begins to understand his reaction to the situations in the opera. The actor must also study the period in which the story takes place. He must create a walk here, a gesture there. For instance, Rigoletto is a hunch-back and so, of course, his gait is different from a man with a straight back.

Often I have written in this column and said on lecture platforms that I believe that a woman lives up to the picture she has of herself. If she feels that she is unattractive or drab she will be that way. If she knows that she looks her best her personality will bloom.

Listen, then, to what Leonard Warren had to say.

"Looking the way you want to is the first step toward feeling the way you want. Make-up not only convinces the outside world, it helps you convince yourself. That's why the whole science of make-up is such an aid and comfort to an actor."

Interest in physical appearance in daily life, is not pure vanity. It is an aid to vibrant living. I go even further in my belief. I think that feeling young can even prolong youthfulness, and it's a lot easier to feel young if you look as atrractive as possible.

Mueller Scores Decisive Victory

PORTLAND (AP) — Peter Mueller, the German middleweight who knocked himself out in a bout with Jimmy Martinez of Phoenix two weeks ago, came back Tuesday night to pound out a unanimous 10-round decision over Martinez here.

Mueller said he tripped when he went flying through the ropes and landed on his head in the first bout.

MEN FEATURED AS COMMENTATORS

TORONTO (CP) — Eight men, including Floyd Curry, Montreal Canadiens' right winger; Cal Jackson, jazz musician and recording artist, and Stan Helleur, newspaper columnist, are giving the man's viewpoint on women's fashions at a department store's fifth annual spring fashion festival which commenced on the weekend with a press preview of spring styles.

MONARCH NATIONAL MOTORS

In Step With Style

"ARE YOU READY?"—If the light of your life pops the question tonight is your trousseau planned? She has probably been waiting with bated breath for this special day and you can bet she has practically decided on a ballerina-length white organza wedding gown, sweetheart roses and a pale blue going-away suit.

What about you? You have not quite been able to ignore the fact that Dior has had an A, H and Y-line for the gals, but as far as the alphabet goes you seem to have been ignored. But there is a glimmer of hope ahead . . . the Empire look . . . the Oriental look and the sheath may have had heaps more publicity, but you too have a new look . . . the Trim look. The long lean look must be your objective in the hustle and bustle of assembling your wedding and honeymoon togs.

Less padding in the shoulders may not help to make you look like a Greek god, but you will be less of a shock to all concerned when you remove your jacket.

Choose a single-breasted three-button suit. The lapels, which are notched higher this year, are matched in narrowness by the slim trousers.

This spring and summer you too will remain cool and poised on the hottest day as men's suitings are extremely light weight. Mohair and silk have been combined with wool for added comfort and crispness. Suitings are primarily quite dark . . . charcoal, charbrown and chargreen are at the top of the list.

Don't Upset Routine . . . Send Laundry Out

Your future wife will no doubt complain about doing your shirts, but 87% of all shirts sold are white and the majority of these have French cuffs. You are sending the shirts to the laundry now, so just continue to do so. There is no reason why marriage should completely upset your routine. Be sure to warn your intended that you will need plenty of top drawer space . . . jewelry has become a real item in the life of a well-groomed man. Bold cuff links in many shapes and colors with tie keepers to match are a must.

As you get in the spirit of all this excitement, you may want to give vent to your desire for something more dashing.

How about Mr. and Mrs. beach ensembles by Jantzen of Canada? You should go together to shop for these items. You may not think that the particular shade of tangarine which she chooses is your best color, but comfort yourself with the thought that it will be quite dashing when you have acquired that dark beach boy look.

Sport shirts by Townline in Galey and Lord combed cotton are available in smart Italian stripes, muted plaids and gay solid shades.

There is a marvellous selection of new and interesting items of apparel for the young man about town and you should have no trouble being ready if she wants to tie the knot immediately.

Remember, men, if a "certain someone" did not pop the important question—buy some new duds anyway—it will do wonders for your morale.

Vodka Now Ousting Scotch

EDINBURGH (CP) — Scotland's distillers are worried about the way Americans and, to a lesser degree, Canadians are taking to the traditional Russian drink, vodka.

R. M. Teacher, chairman of Teacher (Distillers) Limited, says in his annual report to shareholders:

"I think it is worth mentioning here a new factor in the United States and possibly in Canada as well, which may have a far-reaching effect on the sales of Scotch whisky. That is the phenomenal increase in the consumption of vodka.

"During the last year, the sales of this spirit, unaccounted for five years ago, now amount to 2.5 per cent of all the liquor consumed in the United States."

"An auto insurance policy is a Promise ...as good as the company behind it!"

GENERAL ROBERT E. WOOD, former Chairman of the Board, Sears, Roebuck and Company and founder of the Allstate Insurance Company

"TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO I stood before the Sears, Roebuck and Co. Board of Directors and enthusiastically recommended the founding of the Allstate Insurance Company. I was convinced we could give the car owner a better value for his auto insurance dollar. But just as important, I was confident we could set a new high standard for claim settlements.

"After all, an auto insurance policy is a promise to protect you against certain financial losses in the event of an auto accident. Like any promise, it is only as good as the company behind it. We were determined to treat each claim with the same absolute fairness that had made Sears one of the most trusted names in American business by promptly paying a dollar for every dollar due.

"By following this philosophy of fair play, Allstate has risen to world auto insurance leadership in just 25 years. Over 3,250,000 policyholders say much better than I can that 'you can be sure you're in good hands with Allstate'."

We're proud of this record!

As Allstate celebrates its silver anniversary, we point with pride to the high percentage of policyholders who continue with us year after year. This fact alone is convincing evidence that Allstate is living up to the standard of fast, fair claim settlements set when the company was founded.

Allstate has also kept its promise to deliver a better auto insurance value. Over the past 25 years, car owners have saved millions of dollars with Allstate. You just can't buy better auto insurance, why pay more?

WE'VE BLOWN OUR TOPS!

This being Leap Year Day, the women's department of the Victoria Daily Times has thrown discretion to the winds and indulged a suppressed desire to do a complete flip and write of the doing of men instead of women. So, for the first time in the history of the newspaper, these pages feature stories, articles and notes of masculine interest. It is hoped, of course, that feminine eyes will stray this way for there is much to intrigue them. In the interests of all readers, however, it seems only right to announce that there will be no follow-up. On Thursday, the women's department will again return to its daily routine of reporting the doings of feminine Victoria.

It's Leap Year, Gals! Here's Your Chance

Last Saturday's weekend edition in the Victoria Daily Times gave the history of leap year in which as far back as 1288 it was decreed that any man who refused to marry the girl who "bespeaks" him for wedlock in this "year of the leap" must pay her a pound or less, according to his means, unless he proves he's engaged to someone else.

The women's department with much hard work behind it, proved the fact that this is a fallacy. There are still many eligible young men in the city. A few of them are listed here. Good luck, girls!

The perfect example of the suave sophisticate, cosmopolitan Vince Holmes is a "home-grown" product, who was educated at St. Michael's, Brentwood, and UBC, graduating in 1951 with a Bachelor of Commerce degree. He has traveled extensively in England and on the continent. He can discuss anything from interior decorating to paintings of El Greco. He loves to dance (and does so very well), enjoys the symphony, painting and always dresses in quiet good taste—what you might call the "ivy league" type. He's outstanding, 6' 2" and has dark brown hair and hazel eyes.

Tinker, Tailor . . .?

Among the list of definitely eligibles is Alan Wilson, an extremely sauve, appealing man in his mid-20's He's a member of one of Victoria's public speaking clubs, and is avidly interested in flying. A UBC graduate, he enjoys a good party. He's fair-haired and about 5' 11" tall. In the summer you'll see him participating in a favorite outdoor sport—water skiing.

Who have we here? Music hath charms, and so has Victoria's Malcolm Hamilton. He can talk at great length on all matters musical from bop to Bartok, and he plays it all, too. He has a manner that pleases, and is an accomplished pianist, organist and harpsichordist. He graduated from U of Washington in 1955, with a Bachelor of Music degree and is at present taking teacher-training at Provincial Normal School. That's not all—he has a subtle wit—and a new car. Statistics? He's blond, has blue eyes, and has seen 24 summers.

A ready wit, rather quiet nature, and passion for playing the drums will be found in the makeup of Ab Kent, a reporter by profession. He graduated from UBC, and is still an avid supporter of the Varsity activities. His main interests are his car, an Austin, which, on occasion, he finds has a mind of its own, and good jazz. A small moustache, dark, intent eyes, black hair, and a six-foot frame—that's Ab.

Tom Rae and friend, Paul Martinson, are two musical members of Victoria's single male crew. Tom, who plays the organ, is over six feet tall, dark, and, like Paul, a chartered accountant student. Paul is blond, around the same height, and plays the piano exceptionally well. Both fellows are lovers of the outdoors, and a sunny, or even rainy day will find them playing tennis, boating, or cycling near the water. In their mid-twenties, Tom and Paul are interesting young men to know.

He likes steak (rare), writing song lyrics, playing the accordion, and a good party. That's Mike Rose, fair-haired, blue-eyed 21-year-old Victorian, a sub-lieutenant in the Naval Reserve. Mike is a Zeta Psi, and last year at UBC ran for Mardi Gras king. He loves to dance, to sail, and to see a good game of football or rugby. Victoria College and UBC claim him as their own. Among his possessions are his two dogs, dachshunds.

Soldier, Sailor . . .?

John Fraser, local lawyer, is a young man who can talk convincingly and well on just about any subject. He graduated from UBC two years ago with BA and LLB degrees . . . is a lieutenant in the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) . . . and is particularly interested in skiing and music. Cook a spicy Italian meal for Alex James and he'll love you. It's not quite that easy . . . but an interest is sport cars (especially MGs) and modern art would help. Alex came from England several years ago . . . works with the display department of a local store.

Of interest to Vic College and surrounding points is the status of one Edmund Price. Recently, at Vic College, he earned the title, "International Lover of 1956," an honor for which many have vied, few won. Main interest? Girls, naturally. Sidelines include golf, tennis and travelling. Another main point of his interest is his gunmetal grey 1955 Oldsmobile convertible.

Brightening the B.C. Electric building will be found Alex Hall. He's agricultural consultant with said company. His interests envelope boating, music and a pet project, the Thetis Island boys' group. He has blue eyes and a 5' 10" frame. His loves? Life, beauty and food, presumably in that order. Tom Fleming, a chartered accountant, makes his home at the Union Club, and in spare moments enjoys a game of golf. A man of 29 years, he traveled abroad last summer. Tom is a UBC graduate.

Sailing, and skiing enthusiasts are well aware of the existance of Jorgan Baess. A Danish import, he owns his own Dragon Class sail boat, "2-Bits", and drives a Nash. The Symphony, Toastmasters Club, YMCA, and food occupy part of his life. He dances beautifully, and is one of not too many men who waltz in the delightful European manner. Over six feet tall, Jorgen hails from Copenhagen, studies in an English University, and lived in Montreal for four years before discovering the west coast. He is a naval achitect.

Combine a pair of dark brown eyes, dark wavy hair, a love of Chinese food and curry, and chances are you have Keith Gold. He is from South Africa, and has been in Victoria for two years, studying the lumbering business He attended a university in Capetown. Polo, shooting, riding, and playing rugger for the Oak Bay Wanderers are among his first-hand interests. His blueprint for the perfect woman includes a natural nature, refined but not put on. She need not be beautiful, but must be fastidious, and able to meet people comfortably. Not to be forgotten in the realm of the bright spots in his life is his dark green MG, a TD Mark II that is of prime importance to him.

Doctor, Lawyer . . .

Gerald Coultas, the "squire," possesses a vast amount of enigmatic charm. Gerald could have been an actor; as it is, he will probably go into politics, where his Churchillian phrasing will undoubtedly make history. Besides all this, he dances well, sings well and looks well in tweeds. He owns a boxer (Shawn by name) and among other things, likes good books, music, and Gilbert and Sullivan productions. He has a degree in law, to boot.

John Goult, age 25, graduated from UBC with a double degree (BA and LLB). Is presently practising law in Victoria. Among his talents: A good singing voice and acting ability. He has definite preferences, including English tailoring and grey flannel Daks. Favorite foods: Chicken a la king, steak (rare, please). Dances "divinely."

If you hear talk of politics, chances are John Pearkes is somewhere around. Graduated from UBC with a degree in law, he is articling in Victoria. He's a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. At present, the love of his life is a sleek, curved beauty who takes him anywhere he wants to go, and fast. "She" is a Volkswagen, but with the right competition, could be pushed into second place in his life.

Arthur Campbell, MD, "braw, bricht and bonny," is a new import on the local scene. Dr. Campbell: a native of Ayrshire, Scotland, but lately arrived on these shores and has already established a reputation for himself as having a facile wit, profound wisdom and a passion for arguing (pro or con). He plays an intense game of squash, too. One of his greatest present ambitions: To become a "first-class Canadian."

Twenty-five-year-old Al Lewis is a fine specimen of the tall, dark and handsome male . . . complete with crisp, curly hair. An avid motorcyclist, Al belongs to the Victoria Motorcycle Club . . . works as a steam engineer in a dry-cleaning plant.

Chamber of Commerce Head Gives Advice on Cooking

When Mr. Dunn takes over in the kitchen he wants elbow-room and access to every kitchen gadget he can find. His wife keeps out of his way.

"If you like to cook then be sure to marry a girl who doesn't mind you taking over in the kitchen," advises G. Fitzpatrick Dunn—Pat to his friends.

Mr. Dunn, who is noted for his delectible concoctions, has been interested in cooking since he was a small lad of eight years. "I was always bothering my mother to let me do the cooking," he reminisces. "That was in the days of the good old coal and wood stove, too. You had to be an expert to manage one of those monsters."

While Mr. Dunn won't go so far as to say he talked it over with wife Bunny before he "popped the question," he confesses he heaved a sigh of relief when he discovered that his wife didn't mind him "puttering around the kitchen.

"In fact, I think she likes it when I take over on Sunday and cook the dinner," he says with a proud smile.

"Only thing, she claims I use every pot and pan in the place and that I'm not happy until I get everything I can find around me at the stove."

Mr. Dunn has established quite a reputation for cooking when he goes on hunting and fishing expeditions with his men friends. He has several specialties he whips up for them. They go home drooling and so enthusiastic that their wives have many times telephoned the next week to get his recipes.

One of these specialties is steak and mushrooms and his secret, he says, is "lots of butter". He fries the mushrooms in the butter for four or five minutes then sprinkles them lightly with flour. Next he pours a mixture of cream and flour over the mushrooms, adds them to the sizzling hot steak, and u-m-m-m-m!

This love of good eating and cooking is being absorbed by Mr. Dunn's two daughters, Sheelah Jean and Patricia Ann who have been his assistant cooks since they were "knee-high to grasshoppers". Now they are regular connoisseurs of good food and will eat raw oysters, clams, shell fish, gamey game and even blue cheese.

Mr. Dunn was born in Victoria and educated here. He got his chartered accountant's degree in 1941 and is now senior partner in the well-known firm of Ismay, Boiston and Dunn. He is president of the Chamber of Commerce; vice-president on the board of St. Joseph's Hospital; vice-president of the Men's Canadian Club and a director of the Family and Children's Service, and a member of the Council of Charters Accountants of British Columbia.

Kiwanis Club Hears Calgary Man Speak on Test Tube Possibilities

After a perfectly lovely luncheon of baked beef balls in red sauce, assorted vegetables, rolls and coffee, topped with CPR pudding — a clever concoction made from a slice of jellyroll and a daub of whipped cream — Jack S. Peach, public relations director for Canadian Petroleum Association, gave a delightful talk on what the test tube is doing for modern living.

It was at the Kiwanis Club meeting on Tuesday in the Empress Hotel ballroom. (My! but those chandeliers simply make a man tingle with all that lovely crystal.)

And the way the sunshine streams through the French windows from the conservatory, heavy with the scent of garden beauties. Gracious, but it's nice!

Mr. Peach, a Calgary man, was casual in a narrow-cut, single-breasted, notch-lapel, salt and pepper grey lounge suit, white nylon shirt (sans facing) and natty with a wine bow tie and a sprig of Victoria heather in his lapel.

He seemed to set the trend among the younger men present, grey single-breasteds being predominant.

Sports committee chairman Glenn Hope was a style-setter in his charcoal, harrow lapel number and diagonally-striped bowtie in complimenetary rust.

Also at the head table were Ralph Mathews, wearing a steel grey pinstripe flannel with peak lapels, white dress shirt and foulard tie with all-over pattern; Murray Martindale, in a charcoal grey suit with matching waistcoat and red and white tartan tie; Eric Day in grey double-breasted and Burgundy wine necktie; and Charlie Booth, wearing a grey pinstripe single-breasted notched wide lapel, matching waistcoat and blue shirt and tie.

Mr. Martindale introduced the speaker, who had with him a 45-gallon psuedo oildrum from which he pulled all manner of simply marvelous tricks and household oroducts fathered by the gushing oil well. He called it the 'Magi Barrel."

The petrochemical family gives heir to a most delightful array of useful articles such as polyethelehe wrapping material which actually "breathes" oxygen (good for crispy vegetable storage) but remains waterproof.

And freon—you'd never believe it—boiling at room temperature will probably be the refrigerant in your new ice box. It has a cousin or two in the shaving cream, whipped cream, insecticide and airwick bomb business, acting as the propellant when the button atop the bomb is pressed.

Then there's dacron, that wonderful material, also from the petrochemist's test tube, used in textiles and pillow manufacture, especially for small families because it resists "infant moisture."

Mr. Peach produced oodles of other things like polythene squeezie bottles, nylons for girls and horses, lucite for jewelery and tail lights, stretchie socks knitted from spiral yarn, a cashmere-knit sweater made from the same material that goes into convertible tops, permanently-pleated slacks and a new plastic to which nothing will adhere—ideal for frying pans, ash trays and political platforms.

Shamrock Lacrosse Defense Man Wed in Saturday Evening Ceremony

(Rewrite from the Times Saturday, February 25)

While Mr. Charles Palmer played traditional organ music, well-known lacrosse player, Mr. John Thomas (Jack) Thompson, entered Metropolitan United Church last Saturday evening to become the groom of Miss Doreen Isabel Wells, "Miss Victoria."

Mr. Thompson, who is a member of the Victoria Shamrocks, Mann Cup champions, was escorted by his best man, Mr. Bob Monaghan. They were preceded from the vestry by Dr. F. E. H. James, who read the marriage service.

The young groom, son of Mr. and Mrs George Thompson, 124 Beechwood Avenue, was wearing a charcoal grey suit with fine white linen shirt and dark-printed tie in the new long styling. His boutonniere was a single rose.

The best man, Mr. Bob Monaghan, wore a dark-toned suit of fine English wool, with white shirt, matching tie and yellow diamond socks. He wore a rosebud boutonniere. Ushers, Mr. Aln Thompson and Mr. Stanley Thompson, brothers of the groom, were similarly attired in conservatively styled suits, shirts and ties. They also wore rosebud boutonnieres.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy P. Wells, 2649 Quadra Street, asked Miss Patricia Sparkes to be maid of honor. Miss Joan Hutchinson was bridesmaid and Miss Margot Stewart, a cousin of the bride, the flower girl.

Pink roses and flickering candles decorated the table at a reception in the Golden Slipper, where the groom, assisted by his bride, cut a three-tier wedding cake. The groom responded to a toast proposed by Mr. C. Moggridge, and Mr. Monaghan proposed a toast to the bridal attendants.

Guests were received by the newlyweds and their parents. Both Mr. Thompson, Sr., and Mr. Wells wore smartly cut but conservatively styled suits and complementing accessories.

The young couple are now motoring to Los Angeles from where they will fly to Hawaii on honeymoon. For travelling Mr. Thompson donned a classically styled topcoat over his wedding suit. He wore his rose boutonniere.

Bachelors Aid Heart Fund

AURORA, Ill. (UP) — The girls took over Aurora on leap year day today and levied fines on any male found guilty of being single.

But Aurora's he-man Mayor Paul Egan refused to step out of the picture. He insisted that he is running the leap year observance and fired the all-female committee in charge.

They paid fines totalling $282, which will be appropriately donated to the heart fund to combat heart disease.

"Mayor" Mary Reinhart, a 29-year-old honey blonde, authorized the "copperettes" to arrest all the bachelors they can lay their hands on and haul them off to jail.

Aurora's regular police department, obligingly fitted out the "copperettes" in regular police uniforms. They also loaned a paddy wagon for the cause.

Son Needs to Regain Driving Confidence

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

There is no question about the fact that accidents teach people to be cautious more quickly and effectively than anything else. They can, however, build up fears which prove to be a great handicap.

Hurlock

(Q)—"I was very much interested in your recent column about the mother whose teen-age children were constantly criticizing her for driving so slowly and cautiously. My teen-age son used to do the same with me. When he was old enough to get a driver's licence, he drove like a madman. The more his father and I talked to him about this, the faster and more recklessly he drove. He seemed to want to show me that he wasn't afraid, as I am.

"Well as was inevitable, he had a bad accident, broke a leg, lost several teeth, and had some pretty bad cuts on his face. Fortunately, he wasn't killed nor was the girl who was driving with him badly hurt. Since then, he is so afraid of cars that he uses every possible excuse to avoid driving. This is a great handicap to him on dates as no girl wants to go to a party or even the movies unless the boy drives her there.

"The boys make fun of him for being a 'chicken' and it is giving him a bad inferiority complex. The accident happened nearly a year ago and he seems to be getting worse, rather than better. Is there any way we can help him as we feel that this fear is affecting his school work and will be a great handicap to him in any work he goes into if he must use a car."—W. P.

(A)—It is perfectly natural for your son to have a fear complex after his accident. Most people do develop a fear of driving or of being driven after an experience of the sort your son had. In his case, the matter has been made worse because he unquestionably knows he was at fault and this has undermined his confidence in his ability to drive.

In modern times, it is almost essential for people to drive unless they live in large cities where good public transportation is available. In your son's case, he will be greatly handicapped if he allows this fear to get such a hold on him that he will never want to drive again. Why not talk to him about profiting by his mistake, and then drive with him until he regains some of his former confidence? It may take months but it is the only way he will be able to conquer his fear.

Silver Hair Can Be Work Asset If Women Realize Possibilities

When the patiently-awaited time of freedom arrives — the children are grown and away at school, the home is easier to manage, there is more leisure—many mature women are eager to go to work outside the home.

Whether the job is paying or charitable, politics or selling, a mature woman is interested in conforming her appearance to that of working woman rather than mother. It means changing the wardrobe somewhat, gearing the time arrangements so that keeping up suits and dresses can be accomplished with as much ease as the washing of housedresses was formerly done.

It also means attention to beauty. It is not necessary to try to be a teen-ager when one goes back to work. Grey hair is a great asset; if it's taken care of. Don't wear it long. Brush it up and away from the face in soft curls.

Avoid frizziness and bunchy curls that accent aging lines. Pick a natural style that's easy to keep well-groomed in a busy schedule.

Frequent massaging, brushing and shampooing (grey hair, like white clothes, may need more frequent washing) will keep hair soft and handsome. Silver hair needs the foundation of a good permanent. A home permanent, in the working woman's crowded days, is a great boon. One home wave kit is made exclusively for grey, partly grey and white hair.

The waving lotion has a brightening agent to keep the yellow out. It is designed to bring out silver highlights.

Peach complexions should get vivid pink lipstick and light touches on the cheeks. If the skin is pink or white, use pink and rose lipstick, but avoid deep red.

There's a lot of fun and pride in going back to work after the kids are grown. And a woman certainly need not feel she has to try to be a young thing — good smile and well-kept grey hair are natural beauty attributes, as this handsome saleswoman demonstrates.

Stop Pancakes From Sticking

If you have this difficulty, simply add to your pancake batter a small quantity of melted shortening (liquid shortening or cooking oil is ideal). Add about two tablespoons of melted or liquid shortening to the standard recipe for making 14 to 16 pancakes. You'll find that it makes your pancakes easy to lift from the griddle without sticking.

And here's another tip. Don't be in too much of a hurry to turn your pancakes. If you try to turn them before they are ready, the batter will stick to your spatula and to the griddle. After bubbles have appeared on the top of the pancake, gently insert the spatula underneath. If the spatula does not move freely under the pancake, withdraw and allow the pancake to cook until it can be turned freely.

Don't scour your griddle before you make pancakes. If you have scoured the griddle, use wax paper to rub on some shortening. When the griddle is heated, this should help season it.

Another tip is heat your griddle to the right temperature—380° F. On a regular griddle you have no means to checking this temperature, but here is a test which works out very well: A drop of water poured on the heated griddle should bounce for a moment before dissolving in steam. If it turns to steam instantly the griddle is too hot. If it stays more than a second before going up in steam, the griddle is not hot enough.

When making your pancake batter by mixing a ready prepared pancake mix and milk, don't worry about beating all the small lumps out of the batter. Leave them in—you'll get lighter pancakes.

Many people like to add one or more eggs to the pancake batter. German people, for instance, make a special egg pancake. This is a huge pancake which fills the whole griddle. When made, it is dusted with icing sugar, spread with Ligonberry preserve (or other jam), rolled and secured with toothpicks. It makes a delicious supper treat.

Black and brown, well combined, make for high fashion at a budget price. For example: a brown sheath topped by a black-and-brown blazer.

Cone, Cornet and Maternity Lines Feature French Styles

PARIS (UP) — Woman's struggle for womanly curves ran this week into the upside down ice cream cone effect of Lanvin-Castillo's "cornet line" which makes bosoms precariously high and almost extinct.

Castillo of Lanvin came forth with the only "look" worthy of the name this season. On the third day of the Paris spring dress collections, Jean Desses presented a more conservative approach toward the fashionable silhouette for the next six months.

Castillo's cornet line featured a silhouette which flared out from shoulder to hem . . . the waistline often moved up to where the bust used to be. The bustline . . . almost non-existent.

Castillo also came up with "canezous"—flared, waist length boleros — which broke the line in daytime dresses. The canezous gave the effect of two ice cream cones nestled one on top of the other.

Underneath the canezous, princess-style dresses flared out in one continuous line broken only by drapes knotted under the bust or breast-high martingales.

Castillo's "maternity" look in dance dresses startled even his most fervent admirers. Flounces jutted out from under the bustline, in one and two tiers, in what can only be described as a very pregnant way. The mannequin's forward carriage heightened this impression.

Underlining his shortened bustline, Castillo showed diagonal midriff pockets, and appliqued fringed ribbons. To heighten his cone silhouette, he placed sequined bows and Spanish combs atop the mannequin's chignon.

Carne Rebekah Lodge Hears B.C. President

Proivncial president of the Rebekah Assembly of British Columbia, Mrs. Johan Kolofsky, was a special guest at a meeting of Carne Rebekah Lodge No. 45. She congratulated officers and presented retiring noble grand, Mrs. Violet Murton, with her jewel. Presentation was a candlelit ceremony under direction of Mrs. Francis Porter, staff captain.

Mrs. Kolofsky spoke on the subject of a Rebekah home, now being planned. A collection of $20 was donated, and the lodge also made a grant of $100 to the home.

Lots of women have discovered it: the little clutch in fabric (or fur) makes the handiest cosmetic case possible. Neat in the handbag, it keeps everything in one place. It can cost as little or as much as you want to pay.

TODAY'S RECIPE

BUTTERSCOTCH DUMPLINGS

Syrup—1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar, 1¾ cups water, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Dumplings — 1¾ cups soda-made dessert mix, ½ cup chopped nut meats, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons white (distilled) vinegar, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Combine all ingredients for syrup and bring to boil. Meanwhile to make dumplings: Measure soda-made dessert mix into mixing bowl. Stir in nut meats. Beat egg, vinegar, milk and vanilla extract together. Stir into dry mixture and beat until smooth. Pour boiling syrup into a 11½x7⅞x1½-inch baking dish. Drop dumpling dough by spoonfuls into hot syrup, making about 12 dumplings. Bake at 375 degrees F. (moderate oven) about 30 minutes or until dumplings are browned. Serve warm with cream, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To make 1 quart of cranberry juice cocktail at home, cook 2 cups fresh cranberries and 3 cups water until berries are soft. Strain through cheesecloth without squeezing. Then boil juice and ½ cup sugar for 3 minutes, stirring until sugar is dissolved; add 2 tabelspoons lemon juice and chill.

—Simple paritions for drawers and shelves can aid in keeping kitchen utensils handy. For ease of storage, why not put the seldom-used pieces elsewhere?

Bacon curls make an interesting food garnish that may be served hot or cold. To make: pan fry bacon; before thoroughly cooked, roll each slice around the tines of a fork and stand on end to crisp. Drain before serving.

An assortment of two or three kinds of home-made preserves, jellies or fancy pickles in small containers makes a nice gift anytime.

To reheat bread or rolls, place in a paper bag, sprinkle bag with water and heat in a 400-degree oven for 10 minutes or in a bun warmer on top of the range.

Parents Can Prevent Delinquency

MONTREAL (CP) — Too many mothers in modern homes wear the pants and make all the decisions, regulating the father to the role of a "walking pay cheque", Rev. John Brayley of St. Domic's parish said Tuesday.

He told a meeting of a Montreal service club the majority of parents today have little respect for the laws of God, are too busy buying and using cars and television sets and "keeping up with the Joneses" to devote sufficient time and attention to rearing children properly.

"I doubt the wisdom of pouring millions of dollars into clubs, welfare groups and fancy schools which can at best only control juvenile delinquency," he said. "Our homes turn out wayward children faster than police, juvenile courts and correction homes can accommodate them."

"Juvenile delinquency begins in the home and can only be prevented in the home," he said.

COUSINS MEET

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

In some hands, one opponent is far more dangerous than the other. As you develop tricks you can afford to let the "safe" opponent gain the lead, but you must keep out the dangerous foe. The principle, called "avoidance," is illustrated in today's hand.

3 ♦	Pass	3 N.T.	Pass

Opening lead—♣ 4

West leads a club against three no-trump. East puts up the king, and you win the first trick with the ace of clubs. You count tricks, and see that you need five diamond tricks to make sure of the contract.

If East wins a trick while you are developing the diamonds, he will lead a club through you, and the clubs will then defeat the contract. If West wins a trick while you are developing the diamonds, he cannot hurt you by leading clubs; for then your jack of clubs will stop the suit.

In short, East is the dangerous opponent. You must develop five diamond tricks without allowing East to gain the lead.

When you think about the matter in this way, the answer comes to you in a flash. Lead a spade to dummy's king and return a low diamond from the dummy. When East plays low, finesse the nine from your hand!

If West can win the trick with the jack (you can't tell, when you play the hand, which opponent has this card), you are in position to win the other five diamond tricks by overtaking your queen in the dummy. West cannot hurt you.

As it happens, the diamond finesse wins, and you make ten tricks. If you had played the diamonds "normally" East would have taken a diamond trick and defeated the contract by leading a club through you.

Also via Channel 12 . . . The renowned Harlem Globetrotters, the basketball magicians, will meet the Boston Whirlwinds, another top-rated quintet, in a special game to be presented from the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind., on the CBS network, Saturday, March 10, at 12 noon.

Twenty musicals starring Deanna Durbin are being offered to TV by Universal-International Studio, reports NEA staff correspondent Erskine Johnson. The quoted price is $100,000 a picture for one network run. . . . The producers of TV's Medic will film a new series, "City Desk," described as "the first time the screen has attempted to capture the true, authentic story of the Fourth Estate, without glamor and stylization."

The kids will be happy to learn that Wild Bill Hickok will become a big-screen movie with Guy Madison and Andy Devine in the TV roles they created.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN THURSDAY . . .

Thursday's child is one of those very interesting youngsters who will have all kinds of opportunities in the early years to get his, or her, affairs on a secure foundation if courses in practical matters are given. With such a basis your offspring is able to bring out the best in his, or her, nature so that an early success is indicated. The later life requires more care and this can be a charming and agreeable individual who ages gracefully if the early years find the right philosophy of living put into action.

WAS IT YOU WHO SAID:
"I'm in the market for an older-type, pretentious family home; and I must have OIL HOT-WATER heating! My favorite location is in FAIRFIELD (if the taxes are not too high), on a high piece of ground with a VIEW. I don't want too much garden but what there is of it must be nicely terraced and landscaped. I want a large, roomy reception hall with oak floors; a large bright living room and fireplace with picture window, a guest-size dining room and conservatory and an electric kitchen; two bedrooms down and one up are a 'must.' Part basement will do me. I could sure use a large glassed-in porch and also a utility room. I realize that I want a lot for my money, but if you can find me a house of that description you've got yourself a deal, brother!" Well, let's go. Give me a ring and I'll take you to that very house at the price of $11,900

Nun Attempted 'To Throw Mud' Says Judge

LONDON (Reuters) — A 57-year-old nun's claim that she had been unlawfully locked away in a mental home was rejected today by the High Court of Appeal.

The lord chief justice, Lord Goddard, said that the judge in the original action took the view that the nun, Sister Priscilla of the Sisters of Nazareth, had used this case "in order to throw mud."

Sister Priscilla had been a source of trouble to the sisterhood and had made trouble on many occasions by her complaints, Lord Goddard said.

The nun was appealing against the rejection by an earlier court of her claim for damages against the trustees of a Roman Catholic hospital—including Bernard Cardinal Griffin, leading British Catholic cleric—her own mother superior and a nursing home official, alleging false imprisonment and assault.

She claimed she had been sent to the mental home against her will, and held illegally in confinement.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs Dan Gerber (MOTHER OF 5)

Nice letter from a column-reading father. "Our 18-month-old toddler recently broke her right leg, which was promptly placed in a cast — much to her complete frustration. But then, happily for the baby, a delightful 70-year-old neighbor bought a doll and made a cast (plaster of paris and water) for the doll's right leg. Liza was delighted — forgot to whimper — and is nursing dolly nicely." Wonderful psychology! And it would probably work just as well with a bandage for a minor injury.

Cleanup of 'Filthy Ditches' On Ellery Pledged by Council

High priority will be given to construction of drains, curbs and gutters on Esquimalt's Ellery Street this year after council was petitioned Monday night on open ditches running past homes.

Thirty-one names were on the petition which called drainage ditches "reservoirs of filth and dead animals" where children play.

During the winter the three-foot ditches are filled with water, the petition said, constituting a public danger.

Work will be undertaken by local improvement, for which a petition has been issued by the municipal engineer.

Ellery runs between Lampson and Dominion Streets.

Consideration is being given to a new crest for the municipality, embodying Esquimalt's Indian, pioneer, Hudson's Bay Company, navy and military origins.

Sample designs, suggested by Cmdr. H. W. Soulsby, 209 St. Lawrence, and prepared by department of national defence heraldry expert Allan Beddoe, Ottawa, are in the hands of councillors.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books? Then ask Andy?

Andy who is a pixie, not a person, will answer two questions daily submitted by child readers of Canada and the U.S. Children who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive as prizes for the main question, either a 16-volume set of "The Children's Hour" or a 20-volume set of "The American People's Encyclopedia." Address your questions to "Ask Andy" Victoria Daily Times, Victoria.

Andy sends a complete 16-volume set of The Children's Hour to Kay Manternack, aged 10, of Denver, Colo., for her question:

How Did Family Names Originate?

Once in a blue moon we meet a carpenter whose real name is Mr. Carpenter, or a baker named Mr. Baker. Nowadays, this suitable naming is always a surprise. But there was a time when all, or nearly all, family names were reasonable. The miller was named Miller, the smith was named Smith and the butcher was named Butcher.

This was about 900 years ago, when William I conquered England. William was an orderly fellow and he had the names of most of his subjects written in a book—the Doomsday Book. This was confusing, for family names were not commonly in use at the time. There were long lists of Johns and Samuels, and no way of telling which John was which or one Sam from another.

So it seemed sensible to tack on extra bit of information after the given name of each John, and Sam. This one is John the baker. That one is John the tailor. This one is Sam the carter, and that one, Sam the smith. Very soon this became John Baker and Sam Smith. And the second name was shared by the whole family. Taylor, Tylor, Wright, Clark and Cooper are family names which started in this fashion. Naturally, this failed to make sense after Peter Baker, the baker's son, decided to be a miller. For he stayed Peter Baker, and his children were Baker after him.

Other family names were taken from the father's first name. The first Bill Johnson was William, son of John. This distinguished him from Bill Peterson, who was William, son of Pete. The Scots tacked the syllable meaning son of in front of the father's given name. Alan MacDonald meant Alan, son of Donald. The Irish put an O in front of the father's given name to make a family name. The first to be named James O'Brian was James, son of Brian.

Some people took their family name from a place. There were the Moores who once probably lived on or near or across a moor. There were the Fords who may have lived near or even tended a ford in a river. There were Hills, Woods, Lakes and Wells — all family names taken from places. And some family names were taken from directions, maybe directions in which people lived or where they came from. Such family names as North, and Eastman, West and Southerly are taken from directions which at one time had a meaning for the family.

These names seem reasonable enough. But what of the families named Wolf, Fox, Lyon, Lamb or Swann? Was some remote ancestor hungry as a wolf, clever as a fox, brave as a lion, gentle as a lamb or graceful as a swan? Maybe. But more likely these names were taken from shop signs. Inns and taverns displayed pictures and iron cutouts, often of animals, over the doors. A family may have taken its name from the wolf over the door!

Family names grew much the same way in other languages. Some distant ancestor had a good reason for taking this or that family name. And he handed it on to his children — whether it suited them or not.

WHAT ARE SLUGS?

The little garden slug hatches from an egg. He is a small, dark, dewy copy of his parents. Right from the start he belongs to the huge clan of mollusks. He is therefore a remote relative of the clams and oysters. His family name is Gastropoda which makes him first cousin to the snails. In fact he is really a snail without a shell.

The little fellow grows as he feeds on moist and moldy leaves. In the woods he is one of Nature's garbage men. He helps keep the place tidy by removing old vegetation.

In the garden he may be a nuisance. Let's face it — he generally is. For the slug is mighty fond of lettuce — our lettuce. He can do a great deal of damage to the truck farmer's crops. What's more, this salad eater has an amazing sense of smell. He can smell our lettuce from afar. Then he slowly but surely creeps up to do his damage during the dark night.

:omplaining MLAs ,et Off Night Duty

ıt sitting of the B.C. Legisla- was adjourned suddenly by er Bennett Tuesday night opposition members com- d he was working them too

Laing said the bill was the important piece of new leg- ın brought down by the gov- ent this session and because d been introduced Monday he had not time to study it.

mier Bennett agreed to the ırnment and the House rose 2 p.m. today. It had been ted that estimates for the de- ıent of lands and forests would up at the sitting, permitting ssion of the resignation of R. E. Sommers as minister of lands and forests and mines.

Earlier Robert Strachan (CCF—Cowichan-Newcastle) protested that it was "most unfair" of the premier to ask discussion on the bill on such short notice. He accused the premier of trying to "bulldoze" legislation through the House.

Before adjourning the debate Mr. Laing warned Agriculture Minister Kiernan that the milk business was a "slippery pole." The milk act of which he was now so proud "a year from now may not look so good at all."

U.K. To Build Up Scientific Manpower

$280 Million Program Announced To Meet Nuclear Age Challenge

LONDON (Reuters) — The government today announced a five-year, £100,000,000 plan to build up Britain's scientific and technical manpower for the challenges of the nuclear age.

The announcement came less than three months after Sir Winston Churchill warned in a speech that Britain has been falling behind in technological education and is "already surpassed by Russia on a scale which is most alarming." Similar fears that Russia is outstripping the West in technically-trained manpower have been expressed in the United States.

The British plan aims at a 50 per cent increase in student output from advanced technical colleges in England and Wales, and hopes to double the number of workers released by employers for part-time courses during the day, a White Paper disclosed.

NOT EARLY ENOUGH

It said great progress had been made in scientific and technical education — for example the number of university students in such subjects doubled between 1938 and 1955. "But this is nothing like enough," the white paper added.

Under the plan, between now and 1961, a total of £70,000,000 will be spent to start educational building, and a further £15,000,000 for equipment.

Britain's universities and technical colleges will play a key role. The present annual output from technical college advanced courses is about 9,500. The government plans to raise it to about 15,000.

The plan also proposes advanced courses in theoretical and technical education for which workers would be temporarily released from industry to attend technical colleges. Government scholarships for technical students will be increased.

Republicans Hail Ike's Decision

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said today he will run for a second term if the Republican convention and the people want him.

Republican leaders left no doubt they want him. They took his decision as a firm yes, and jubilantly predicted "overwhelming victory" in November.

At New York stocks advanced sharply to new highs for 1956 after the president's announcement.

Bethlehem Steel led the upturn, up nearly $3. The market ran at a fast clip with the tickers behind the trading on the floor.

President Eisenhower will go on a U.S.-Canada radio-TV hookup at 10 p.m. EST (7 p.m. Victoria time) to explain to the people, he said, a number of factors bearing on his decision. Then he added:

"My answer will be positive. That is, affirmative."

"And I assure you of this: My answer would not be affirmative unless I thought I could last out the five years."

Mr. Eisenhower said he did not know for certain whether the Republican convention would want him after his speech tonight.

But the Republican leaders were more than satisfied. To a man, they predicted the party convention in San Francisco next August will renominate Mr. Eisenhower by acclamation—without even taking a roll call. And probably with vice-president Richard M. Nixon as his running mate again, although Mr. Eisenhower would not commit himself on that today.

He made it plain at his news conference that he did not consider the heart attack he suffered at Denver last Sept. 24 a handicap to trying for a second term.

A moment before his news conference ended, in the course of answering a question, he declared firmly that he could assure the reporters "my answer would not be affirmative unless I thought I could last out the five years."

Mr. Eisenhower disclosed that, as recently as Tuesday morning, he was still arguing with himself about which way to decide. He said he finally confided his decision with about six people last night.

The president's disclosure came in a tense and dramatic news conference which attracted a record crowd of 311 reporters and photographers.

3-YEAR TRADE PACT

Russia Buys Canada Wheat

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Canada has signed a three-year trade agreement with Russia under which the Soviet will take a maximum of 55,000,000 bushels and a minimum of 45,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat during the next three years.

The Soviet undertaking means that this country will sell between $60,000,000 and $75,000,000 worth of wheat to Russia at world prices prevailing at the time of shipment.

SAME RATES AS U.S.

In return Canada has agreed to grant most favored nation treatment in its tariff schedules to Russia. This means that Russian goods coming into Canada will be admitted at lower tariff rates than have prevailed against them.

The agreement, outlined in Commons this afternoon by Trade Minister Howe, does not bind Canada to firm commitments to take any particular type of Russian goods or any specified quantity. Thus Canada has obtained a firm commitment from Russia to buy Canadian wheat but in return has not had to make any firm commitment to take Russian goods.

FROM B.C. PORTS

The wheat will be shipped to Russia's eastern ports out of Vancouver.

The agreement specifies the amount of Canadian wheat Russia will take in tons, a minimum of 1,200,000 tons (14,687,000 bushels). Russia will place orders immediately for Canadian wheat and the orders will total at least 500,000 tons in the first year.

Mr. Howe and External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson signed the agreement for Canada. Russian ambassador Dmitri S. Chauvahin signed for the Soviet Union. The pact must be ratified by both governments within 90 days.

Mr. Howe told Commons today he would ask for Parliament's approval.

Russia has been eager to obtain the "most favored nation" tariff concession from Canada. It will place Russia on the same basis for trade as the United States and other "most favored" countries. Canada also trades on this basis with Communist Poland, Czechoslovakia and China.

NO SPECIFIED

Government sources declined to speculate here on what Canada might take in the way of goods from Russia. Canada produces furs and pulp and paper in quantities, and these are the major export items that Russia has to offer.

During the first 10 months of last year Canada sold Russia $2,672,000 worth of goods, mostly wood pulp and vegetable oils. Canada imported $554,000 worth of Russian goods, mainly furs.

During the negotiations which began Feb 1, Canada reportedly sought to have the agreement extend beyond three years but the Russians refused to sign beyond the three years. They are presumably gambling that their agricultural development program will have progressed to a point at the end of three years that they may not require Canadian wheat.

GOVERNMENT SUSPENDS JAMIESON

See Page 21

Edgar Jamieson, Sergeant-at-Arms in the B.C. Legislature, today was suspended from the service of the House.

Mr. Jamieson told the Times his suspension resulted from his evidence before the legislature's committee on mining and railroads this morning in connection with Stewart-Cassiar road construction.

He testified he had stated outside the committee that he was out to "break" Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers over his handling of the road project.

Lloyd Off On World Peace Tour

LONDON (Reuters)—Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd took off today on a peace-making tour through the Middle East on his way to and from an eight-power conference in Karachi next month on Asian security.

Lloyd will meet State Secretary Dulles of the United States and the foreign ministers of the six other member countries in the Pakistani capital March 6-8 for a session of the council of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. The other pact members are Pakistan, France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and the Philippines.

Lloyd will visit Egypt, Israel and other Middle East capitals for talks on the Arab-Israeli tension, and will also call at New Delhi for talks with India's Prime Minister Nehru.

At the airport today, Lloyd said the security of the Middle East countries depends on the fact that the "big three" Western powers are determined to honor their 1950 declaration guaranteeing peace in the area.

Britain, France and the U.S. "are determined to honor the 1950 tripartite agreement in the spirit and the letter."

About Israel, he said: "We do not think that its security depends on an arms race."

By TOM GOULD, Times Legislative Reporter

Startling new charges in connection with the Sommers-Sturdy case are expected to be bared in the legislature today.

The four-man Liberal group in the House is expected to counter-attack as the result of sweeping accusations made by former lands and forests Minister R. E. Sommers in his resignation statement Monday.

George Gregory (Lib., Victoria) is scheduled to lead off the Opposition blast when the legislature consider the estimates of the lands and forests department.

The estimates are scheduled to be considered at today's sitting.

NO COMMENT

Mr. Gregory would make no comment on the nature of the statement he plans.

However, it is expected he will "name names" in the Sturdy-Sommers case, as a result of Mr. Sommers' attack on the chief defence witness in the slander action the former minister initiated against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy.

The Sturdy-Sommers case has kept the House in constant turmoil since the current session opened Jan. 17. The House is due to prorogue on Friday.

The CCF group is expected to join in the hue and cry by demanding again a royal commission into the entire case.

However, they are withholding all comment, and prefer to make all their statements on the floor of the House. The lands and forests department estimates will provide the last opportunity for the issue to be raised.

TO DEMAND PROOF

Liberal leader Arthur Laing is expected to demand proof of the "plot" against Mr. Sommers and B.C.'s forest legislation.

And there are reports the former minister will be asked to resign from his seat in the House if he cannot substantiate his accusations.

Vancouver Papers Urge Royal Inquiry

Vancouver newspapers united today in editorials demanding a royal commission of inquiry into the resignation of Forests Minister Sommers. Here are excerpts:

THE SUN: "The resignation settles nothing. It merely reinforces the demand for a royal commission of inquiry into his conduct as minister. . . . The way to defend the government and to protect the forests . . . is to expose the alleged plotters . . . by a wide-open inquiry.

THE PROVINCE: "Ten days ago, this newspaper . . . stated editorially that a public inquiry into the entire controversy was the appropriate method to deal with the situation . . . the inquiry should be undertaken with the rules of evidence applied."

THE HERALD: "A judicial commission of inquiry . . . could do more than bring into the open the factors precipitating Mr. Sommers' declaration to the legislature (that 'hundreds of thousands of dollars' have been invested to upset government control of the forest). He does not need to await a judicial inquiry . . . the legislature is still in session.

Ray Munro Remanded

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Munro, tabloid reporter and central figure in Vancouver's Tupper police inquiry, was remanded one week in police court on a charge he assaulted Billy Hinton, 13, Feb. 12. Munro did not appear in court.

Kenneth Hinton, the boy's father, laid the charge and said the incident occurred while Billy and two companions were cycling in the downtown area.

Cuthbert Also Named; All Others Cleared

Royal Commissioner R. H. Tupper, Q.C., has ruled that ex-chief of police Walter Mulligan of Vancouver, now in California, accepted bribes in 1949 and also shared pay-off money from gamblers with former Detective Sergeant Leonard W. Cuthbert.

The final report by Mr. Tupper on the sensational Vancouver police inquiry containing these findings was tabled in the legislature this afternoon by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

It cleared all other officers on the force of any evidence of wrongdoing.

The report made no recommendations as to possible legal steps. Attorney-General Bonner, who presented the report, announced that a committee of three lawyers has been set up to "determine any future course of action."

". . . L. W. Cuthbert, in and between March 1 and May 15, 1949, corruptly accepted moneys as bribes to dissuade him from his duty as a police officer, from Peter Wallace and George Sutherland, both in my opinion at the time of giving such moneys, bookmakers, and shared with W. H. Mulligan in bribes given by them and by a person or persons unknown for the purpose of dissuading the said Mulligan and L. W. Cuthbert from doing their duty as police officers."

MOVED TO LOS ANGELES

Chief Mulligan was fired from the 750-man force at his own request October 31, 1955, and later moved to Los Angeles as a landed immigrant.

Mr. Tupper, in declining to make recommendations on legal action, made note of the former chief's departure.

". . . I say no more than would be said by any person sharing my opinion that two police officers have engaged in corrupt practices; one, and the junior of them, stood to face and admit the allegations against him; the other did not."

Det. - Sgt. Cuthbert was discharged earlier this month on charges arising from his attempted suicide last June. He is working as a security guard for an oil company in Vancouver.

He testified before Mr. Tupper that he had received a series of $500 payoffs from gamblers and split them "50-50" with chief Mulligan.

Mr. Bonner said Alex Pearson, solicitor for the attorney-general's department, assistant commission counsel Vic Dryer and Vancouver prosecutor Stewart McMorran have been named to form the three-man committee to study the reports of an RCMP team which worked with Mr. Tupper. They will also look over the transcript of evidence compiled during more than six months of intermittent hearings.

WALTER MULLIGAN

LEONARD CUTHBERT

SET UP LAST JUNE

The commission was set up June 25, 1955, after a series of articles appeared in Flash Magazine, a Toronto tabloid, charging corruption within the force and following a report of a Senate committee on drug addiction which criticized the Vancouver force for laxity.

The attempt a day earlier by Det.-Sgt. Cuthbert to take his own life in the police station with his service revolver also helped touch off the inquiry.

Mr. Tupper's interim report—dealing with administration only—was brought down in January.

In his final report, Mr. Tupper said there likely had been a pay-off by Chinese gamblers to members of the force, but that there was no evidence against individuals.

In Mr. Tupper's opinion, information had been supplied to the underworld on impending police action, but that there was no evidence "to implicate any named person therein."

ABSOLVED OF WRONGDOING

Alan Rossiter, now staff superintendent of the force, was cleared, in the opinion of the commissioner, of any suggestion of wrongdoing in his purchase of a television set from a transit company vice-president.

Deputy-chief Gordon Ambrose and Superintendent of Detectives J. C. Horton were cleared of charges made by Det.-Sgt. Cuthbert that they wished to share in gambling payoffs.

"The allegation against Inspector B. J. Jelley of improperly using police cars is, in my opinion, untrue and could not, with any honesty of purpose, have been made

Alabama U. Heads Refused Jury Trial

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)—A federal judge refused today in the Autherine Lucy case to permit university officials to be tried by jury.

Judge Hobart Grooms ruled on the University of Alabama officials request for separate trials by jury before getting into the heart of Miss Lucy's case. She is asking that the university's top echelon be held in contempt of court for suspending her from the school after three days of rioting over her admission.

The drama of Miss Lucy's appearance in a crowded courtroom was intensified by the arrival of Thurgood Marshall, negro lawyer, who was credited with a major share in winning historical civil rights victories in the U.S. supreme court.

Marshall told the court that the sole object of today's hearing is "to get her back into the university."

Marshall's first move as Miss Lucy's special lawyer was to request that conspiracy charges against university officials be removed from the contempt action.

Marshall, assisting Miss Lucy's regular lawyer, Arthur Shores, said an investigation could not turn up evidence that any university official had "anything to do with people milling around the university" during the time Miss Lucy was a student.

Judge Grooms accepted Marshall's request.

Edgar Jamieson, Sergeant-at-Arms in the B.C. Legislature, today was suspended from the service in the House.

Mr. Jamieson told the Times his suspension resulted from his evidence before the legislature's committee on mining and railroads this morning in connection with Stewart-Cassiar road construction.

He testified he had stated outside the committee that he was out to "break" former Lands and Forest Minister R. E. Sommers over his handling of the road project.

This was disclosed in testimony today before the Mahaffy Commission investigating charges of maladministration made against the province's Social Credit government.

IT'S LEAP YEAR DAY; WOMEN DO FLIP-FLOP

Today is Leap Year Day. By tradition it is the year in which the female makes the advances for marriage instead of the male. To mark the occasion the women's department of The Times did a complete about face and devoted their news columns to the doings of the male. Turn to pages 22 and 23.

LIBERALS TO BARE STURDY EVIDENCE?

By TOM GOULD, Times Legislative Reporter

Startling new charges in connection with the Sommers-Sturdy case are expected to be bared in the legislature today.

The four-man Liberal group in the House is expected to counter-attack as the result of sweeping accusations made by former lands and forests Minister R. E. Sommers in his resignation statement Monday.

George Gregory (Lib., Victoria) is scheduled to lead off the Opposition blast when the legislature consider the estimates of the lands and forests department.

The estimates are scheduled to be considered at today's sitting.

NO COMMENT

Mr. Gregory would make no comment on the nature of the statement he plans.

However, it is expected he will "name names" in the Sturdy-Sommers case, as a result of Mr. Sommers' attack on the chief defence witness in the slander action the former minister initiated against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy.

The Sturdy-Sommers case has kept the House in constant turmoil since the current session opened Jan. 17. The House is due to prorogue on Friday.

The CCF group is expected to join in the hue and cry by demanding again a royal commission into the entire case.

However, they are withholding all comment, and prefer to make all their statements on the floor of the House. The lands and forests department estimates will provide the last opportunity for the issue to be raised.

TO DEMAND PROOF

Liberal leader Arthur Laing is expected to demand proof of the "plot" against Mr. Sommers and B.C.'s forest legislation.

And there are reports the former minister will be asked to resign from his seat in the House if he cannot substantiate his accusations.

Vancouver Papers Urge Royal Inquiry

Vancouver newspapers united today in editorials demanding a royal commission of inquiry into the resignation of Forests Minister Sommers. Here are excerpts:

THE SUN: "The resignation settles nothing. It merely reinforces the demand for a royal commission of inquiry into his conduct as minister. . . . The way to defend the government and to protect the forests . . . is to expose the alleged plotters . . . by a wide-open inquiry.

THE PROVINCE: "Ten days ago, this newspaper . . . stated editorially that a public inquiry into the entire controversy was the appropriate method to deal with the situation . . . the inquiry should be undertaken with the rules of evidence applied."

THE HERALD: "A judicial commission of inquiry . . . could do more than bring into the open the factors precipitating Mr. Sommers' declaration to the legislature (that 'hundreds of thousands of dollars' have been invested to upset government control of the forest). He does not need to await a judicial inquiry . . . the legislature is still in session.

Republicans Hail Ike's Decision

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said today he will run for a second term if the Republican convention and the people want him.

Republican leaders left no doubt they want him. They took his decision as a firm yes, and jubilantly predicted "overwhelming victory" in November.

Bethlehem Steel led the upturn, up nearly $3. The market ran at a fast clip with the tickers behind the trading on the floor.

President Eisenhower will go on a U.S.-Canada radio-TV hookup at 10 p.m. EST (7 p.m. Victoria time) to explain to the people, he said, a number of factors bearing on his decision. Then he added:

"My answer will be positive. That is, affirmative."

"And I assure you of this: My answer would not be affirmative unless I thought I could last out the five years."

Mr. Eisenhower said he did not know for certain whether the Republican convention would want him after his speech tonight.

But the Republican leaders were more than satisfied. To a man, they predicted the party convention in San Francisco next August will renominate Mr. Eisenhower by acclamation—without even taking a roll call. And probably with vice-president Richard M. Nixon as his running mate again, although Mr. Eisenhower would not commit himself on that today.

He made it plain at his news conference that he did not consider the heart attack he suffered at Denver last Sept. 24 a handicap to trying for a second term.

A moment before his news conference ended, in the course of answering a question, he declared firmly that he could assure the reporters "my answer would not be affirmative unless I thought I could last out the five years."

Mr. Eisenhower disclosed that, as recently as Tuesday morning, he was still arguing with himself about which way to decide. He said he finally confided his decision with about six people last night.

The president's disclosure came in a tense and dramatic news conference which attracted a record crowd of 311 reporters and photographers.

Royal Commissioner R. H. Tupper, Q.C., has ruled that ex-chief of police Walter Mulligan of Vancouver, now in California, accepted bribes in 1949 and also shared pay-off money from gamblers with former Detective Sergeant Leonard W. Cuthbert.

The final report by Mr. Tupper on the sensational Vancouver police inquiry containing these findings was tabled in the legislature this afternoon by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

It cleared all other officers on the force of any evidence of wrongdoing.

The report made no recommendations as to possible legal steps. Attorney-General Bonner, who presented the report, announced that a committee of three lawyers has been set up to "determine any future course of action."

". . . L. W. Cuthbert, in and between March 1 and May 15, 1949, corruptly accepted moneys as bribes to dissuade him from his duty as a police officer, from Peter Wallace and George Sutherland, both in my opinion at the time of giving such moneys, bookmakers, and shared with W. H. Mulligan in bribes given by them and by a person or persons unknown for the purpose of dissuading the said Mulligan and L. W. Cuthbert from doing their duty as police officers."

WALTER MULLIGAN

MOVED TO LOS ANGELES

Chief Mulligan was fired from the 750-man force at his own request October 31, 1955, and later moved to Los Angeles as a landed immigrant.

Mr. Tupper, in declining to make recommendations on legal action, made note of the former chief's departure.

". . . I say no more than would be said by any person sharing my opinion that two police officers have engaged in corrupt practices; one, and the junior of them, stood to face and admit the allegations against him; the other did not."

Det. - Sgt. Cuthbert was discharged earlier this month on charges arising from his attempted suicide last June. He is working as a security guard for an oil company in Vancouver.

He testified before Mr. Tupper that he had received a series of $500 payoffs from gamblers and split them "50-50" with chief Mulligan.

Mr. Bonner said Alex Pearson, solicitor for the attorney-general's department, assistant commission counsel Vic Dryer and Vancouver prosecutor Stewart McMorran have been named to form the three-man committee to study the reports of an RCMP team which worked with Mr. Tupper. They will also look over the transcript of evidence compiled during more than six months of intermittent hearings.

SET UP LAST JUNE

The commission was set up June 25, 1955, after a series of articles appeared in Flash Magazine, a Toronto tabloid, charging corruption within the force and following a report of a Senate committee on drug addiction which criticized the Vancouver force for laxity.

Mr. Tupper's interim report—dealing with administration only—was brought down in January.

In his final report, Mr. Tupper said there likely had been a pay-off by Chinese gamblers to members of the force, but that there was no evidence against individuals.

In Mr. Tupper's opinion, information had been supplied to the underworld on impending police action, but that there was no evidence "to implicate any named person therein."

ABSOLVED OF WRONGDOING

Alan Rossiter, now staff superintendent of the force, was cleared, in the opinion of the commissioner, of any suggestion of wrongdoing in his purchase of a television set from a transit company vice-president.

Deputy-chief Gordon Ambrose and Superintendent of Detectives J. C. Horton were cleared of charges made by Det.-Sgt. Cuthbert that they wished to share in gambling payoffs.

"The allegation against Inspector B. J. Jelley of improperly using police cars is, in my opinion, untrue and could not, with any honesty of purpose, have been made
